Conference on Windsor Strike Is In Progress

WINDSOR, Ont. April 24.—(CP)—Officials of the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.) and the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., were reported this afternoon to be in conference in an effort to settle the dispute which has closed all three plants of the Ford Company in Windsor as well as four other plants that make parts for Ford.

A statement on the result of the conference was expected about 2:30 p.m.

Number of men idle as a result of the stoppage increased this morning to nearly 17,500.

With more than 15,000 men idle at the Ford shops, the Gotfredson, Ltd., plant, which supplies the Ford company with truck bodies, was closed and 800 men made idle.

The Canadian Bridge Company plant, which produces parts for Ford also closed today and its 800 men are idle.

Another 200 men were affected at the Essex Wire Corporation plant. The Auto Specialties Manufacturing Co. of Canada, Ltd., also closed, forcing its 500 men into idleness.

OTTAWA, April 24.—(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell said in a statement today that a work stoppage at the Ford Motor Company of Canada at Windsor "appears to be on the eve of settlement."

The statement issued by the Labor department said: Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, minister of labor announces that through the combined efforts of the conciliation services of the Ontario and the Dominion labor departments the labor dispute at the Ford plant at Windsor appears to be on the eve of settlement.

CLOSED YESTERDAY

"Details of the settlement will no doubt be given out after the close of a conference which is now proceeding between George Burt of the United Automobile Workers of America and Wallace Campbell, president of the company."

The Ford plant closed down yesterday following a labor dispute. Today it was reported from Windsor that four other plants were idle as a result of the Ford shutdown.

Cabinet Crisis In North Ireland

BELFAST, April 24.—(CP)—Two Northern Ireland cabinet members and four parliamentary secretaries resigned today, precipitating an Easter eve crisis for the government of Premier John Miller Andrews.

The Ministers who resigned were Sir Basil Brooke, deputy premier, and Attorney - General James MacDermott.

Their resignations climaxed criticism of the Andrews government by members of his own Conservative Party, who contend that it "lacks ginger." There is to be a party meeting April 28 to weigh the crisis.

U.S. Flier Sealed Doom With Defiant Outburst Before Japanese Court

NEW YORK, April 24.—(AP)—The Daily News, in a copyrighted story from Washington, today quotes one American pilot who was captured in the raid on Tokyo and later executed as hurling defiance at a Nipponese court with the declaration:

"Sure, we bombed your damned town. And we'll bomb it again. We'll bomb it twice and three times. I'll bomb it myself as often as God will let me."

The story, written by Lowell Limpus, added:

"These were the gallant words with which one of the three Doolittle aviators, executed by the Japanese, sealed his doom, as he hurled defiance at a Nipponese court, according to reliable and well-authenticated reports which have just seeped out of the island kingdom.

"And the Japs killed him for it."

Limpus added that the trial of the three American aviators who were executed is understood to have been held late last September.

The Daily News story continued:

"The story is that one of the six missing officers set the defiant example—and that two of the other prisoners followed it with such a vigor the Japs branded them as 'overly arrogant and insulting' and deserving of the death penalty."

R.A.F. Eager to Join In Air Raids on Japan

LONDON, April 24. — (CP)— Winston Churchill denounced today the "cold-blooded" execution of United States airmen by the Japanese and declared the R.A.F. "earnestly look forward to the day when they will be able to fly side by side with their American comrades to attack Tokyo and other cities of Japan."

The prime minister said in a message to Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the American air forces:

"I have heard with indignation of the cold-blooded execution of your airmen by the Japanese.

"This barbarous and unusual action reveals in a peculiarly significant manner the fear the Japanese have of having munitions factories and other military objectives in their homeland bombed.

"I cannot resist sending you this message to assure you that the R.A.F. earnestly look forward to the day when they will be able to fly side by side with their American comrades to attack Tokyo and other cities of Japan and strip this cruel and greedy nation of their power to molest the civilized world.

"We shall certainly claim for our airmen a full share in this task, which, however long it takes, must be thoroughly done by the combined force of both our peoples."

U.S. Casualties Not Over 12,000

WASHINGTON, April 24—(AP)—An estimate that United States casualties in North Africa, from the landing Nov. 7 to date, "will not run more than 12,000," has been made by Elmer Davis, director of war information.

Last night, Davis referred to the statement by Roane Waring, national commander of the American Legion, that there have been many more casualties than have been announced.

"This appears to have been due to a "misunderstanding," Davis said.

"Since the beginning of the North African operation, the landing of Nov. 7, various war department announcements have reported a total of more than 10,000 casualties. Some others have not yet been reported to Washington, but it is estimated here that the total from Nov. 7 to date will not run more than 12,000" he said.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, April 24—The massed weight of the British First and Eighth Armies and the American Second Corps has rolled the Axis back as much as seven miles in a general offensive supported by another record-breaking aerial onslaught along a 110-mile front in northeastern Tunisia.

The offensive is now rolling, today's communique from headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower disclosed, and United States troops have gained six miles on the strategic road to Mateur on the northernmost front after desperate fighting in which German counter-attacks were repulsed.

The Americans were about 15 miles west of Mateur and perhaps 30 miles southwest of Bizerte.

The other brought to Malta the seven ships which this battered island is striking out at the foe with increasing vigor.

Four other ships listed as damaged were also believed to have sunk later, the admiralty declared.

Three supply ships and a naval auxiliary were seen to sink, the communique said.

It added that the operations extended from the Gulf of Cagliari, Sardinia, to the Riviera and the Tunisian coast, where one submarine shelled a bridge.

MOSCOW, April 24—The Germans apparently have abandoned their offensive in the Northwest Caucasus after having been "bled white" by losses in futile attempts to enlarge the Axis bridgehead, the Soviets announced today.

The mid-day communique reported that the enemy "launched no further active operations" on the Kuban front and said that his nearly fortnight-long attacks had frost him heavily in both manpower and equipment. On yesterday alone, 500 German soldiers were killed and 12 tanks destroyed.

Allied observers believed the offensive had been designed to stem a Russian drive threatening to push the Axis out of the Caucasus altogether and as to gain further ground as a springboard for Axis summer operations.

FURIOUS COMBATS

During the height of the battle, the Germans hurled as many as 3,000 troops and scores of tanks against the Soviet lines in a single day. Hundreds of German planes supported the ground forces and touched off furious aerial combats. In the last few days, Soviet pilots have shot down 36 German planes over the Kuban area.

Red air force bombers, seeking the initiative, bombed enemy airdromes today and started many fires. Heavy explosions also were observed, the mid-day communique said.

Duke Is Dead

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, April 24.—(AP)—Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's headquarters announced today that a captured document indicated that Marshal Erwin Rommel, the German commander in Tunisia, had left Africa. A statement issued by the headquarters of the 18th Army group said:

"A document dated March 19 recently captured by the 1st Army was signed by Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim as general officer commander-in-chief and not by Rommel, whose present whereabouts and new appointment, if any, are unknown."

Rommel last was known to have been in Africa during the Kasserine Pass fighting in February, when captured letters mentioned him.

Recent reports have said variously that Rommel had been recalled to take charge of the defence of Italy, Sardinia and Sicily because the German high command was convinced that Africa was lost; that he was in disgrace with Hitler and removed; that he was seriously ill with malaria and recuperating in Germany.

Germany Rejects Sweden's Protest

NEW YORK, April 24—(AP)—The German radio said last night that the Berlin government "Rejected as unjustified the protest which the Swedish government lodged with the Reich April 19 against the shelling of the Swedish submarine Draken by the German merchant ship Altkirch."

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said the German reply to Sweden "Pointed out that the Swedish submarine by its incomprehensible actions, which were moreover contradictory to orders issued by the Swedish navy, was itself responsible for the incident."

The German version was that the Altkirch sighted the submarine about a nautical mile ahead, that the submarine dived, the German set upon a zig-zag course along the three-mile territorial limit and there sighted the submarine at periscope depth outside territorial waters to the starboard of the Altkirch.

The condition of J. H. B. Smith, Wolf Creek, world wheat king of 1929, was "unchanged" Saturday, it is reported by the Royal Alexandra Hospital. He was admitted to the hospital Thursday in a critical condition. He suffered a neck fracture when the team he was driving ran away.

War News Summary

SATURDAY, APRIL 24

Tunisia: The noose around Field Marshal Rommel's beleaguered forces was tightening today and it appeared that the British 1st Army was on the verge of sweeping down from the mountains onto the open plain some 30 miles from Tunis, the capital.

For the moment, the 1st Army's thrust was the gravest danger to Rommel's Africa Corps and threatened to split the centre of the 100-mile-long Axis corridor.

In the south, where the British 8th Army has driven half-way up the coast from Enfidaville toward Bou Ficha, the pace slackened as Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's troops picked their way through coastal marshes under fire by German mortars and machine-guns.

Jap Vessel Sunk In Kavieng Raid

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, April 24.—(CP)—A Japanese merchant ship has been sunk by Allied bombing at Kavieng, New Ireland, the high command reported today.

Kavieng is a big Japanese shipping and air base some 550 miles northeast of the Allied base of Port Moresby, New Guinea.

In another aerial action, Japanese ground positions south of Salamaua, New Guinea, were heavily strafed while aground Allied troops killed 20 of the enemy.

A single four-engined bomber, which was on reconnaissance, attacked the 8,000-ton ship at Kavieng. The ship was moving south with an escort of three destroyers.

A 500-pound bomb hit the vessel square'y amidship and another came close enough to cause damage. The ship burst into flames, smoke rising 2,000 feet above it, and was left sinking.

Negro Cuts Off Youth's Hand For 'Good Luck' Piece

WEST MEMPHIS, Ark., April 24—(AP)—City Marshal Bud Holland said last night that a 22-year-old negro is being held on Marsh an, Ark., jail on a charge of assault with intent to kill after confessional that he had cut off another negro youth's hand for a "good luck" piece.

Holland said Charles Edwards said that the 21-year-old negro, Bloomfield into the woods on a pretended scrap hunt. Thursday, knocked the boy unconscious with a bottle and then proceeded to slice off Bloomfield's left hand just above the wrist with his pocket knife.

Fierce Battle Marks Capture Of Takrouna

By NED RUSSELL

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY, Tunisia, April 22—(Delayed)—Eighth Army veterans mopped up Takrouna peak and villages with bayonets and knives in the bitterest death struggle at close quarters since they took the road to Tunis

Grimy, bearded, red-eyed men who fought amid flying shells and the screams of the dying for 48 hours came out of the battle today with blood-covered uniforms as their comrades, attacking behind a heavy artillery barrage, shoved on toward the mountains north of Takrouna village.

FIRST ITALIAN FIGHTERS

The fight atop the 800-foot peak finally ended at 8 p.m. last night. At that hour the first real Italian fighters the British have met, surrendered in a body, 326 of them. They gave up only because their ammunition gave out.

These Italians were tough trained killers who didn't feel faint when stout British troopers flung their grenades and rushed to clear the road up the side of the steep peak and reach the village atop it.

They stood, fired and fought back and when they gave up they said the Allies wouldn't get to Tunis. They holed up in caves and crevices of the slopes and had to be dragged out before their machine guns and mortars were silenced.

GRAPPLE WITH HANDS

"We literally grappled with them with our hands," said one Eighth Army veteran. "I saw two of our men spot an Italian in a little mud-brick house, run inside and kill him with a bayonet and then die when another Italian loosed in a grenade."

Troops climbed through trap-doors in roofs of the drab houses, spraying narrow streets of Takrouna village with tommy guns, and pushed through doors and windows from house to house.

"It was a mad battle—everybody was shouting, screaming and shooting and baynots and knives clashing, one soldier told me.

Rommel's troops are fighting desperately on their last miles of Tunisian soil. Takrouna was only the first of three important objectives that must be taken to straighten out the Eighth Army front. The others are strongly defended mountains.

Hundreds of Montgomery's guns began thundering at 7 a.m. from the northern edge of the Enfidaville plain, pouring thousands of shells into German and Italian positions as British infantry crept from rock to rock and shrub to shrub, killing the enemy.

150 Nazi Engines Smashed Monthly

LONDON, April 24.—(AP)—Combined blows of the R.A.F., R.C.A.F. and American "trainbuster" air fleet against Hitler's rail transport are smashing his dwindling supply of locomotives at the rate of 150 a month, the air ministry reported today.

At this rate, the Allies are destroying 50 more locomotives in a month than the Fives-Llile plant in northern France, the largest in Europe, can produce in a year —and the Fives-Lille normal production for a year is said to have been cut appreciably by persistent R.A.F. bombings.

The Rouen trainyards, the Hamm yards in Germany and other rail centres such as Rennes, Amiens, Abbeville and Foix, were hit heavily in March.

"The shortage of locomotives and railway material is making itself felt in the heart of Germany as well as in the east and in the Balkans," the air ministry said.

Russian Churches Are Jammed With Worshippers Good Friday

MOSCOW, April 24.—(AP)—All of Russia's churches at the end of Holy Week, made Easter preparations today for what may be the largest single day's attendance since before the revolution.

Great crowds flocked to Good Friday services here all yesterday and far into the night. This came after Palm Sunday's record turnout.

In the stores were extra supplies of sugar and flour and other articles for cooking. Easter cakes and other holiday fare, and thousands of Moscow housewives were up early today, thronging the stores to buy.

All 20 of the Greek Orthodox churches open in Moscow are certain to be packed tomorrow. Many church-goers are planning to rise before dawn to assure themselves of places.

Last Sunday, the Palm Sunday crowds were so thick that the worshippers had difficulty in crossing themselves.

Special music programs are scheduled in all churches tomorrow.

Miss Kinnear is believed to be the first woman in the Empire to receive so high a judicial appointment. She practises law in Port Colborne and has been active in the Liberal party in both the provincial and federal fields.

J. WALTER JONES LIKELY TO SUCCEED CAMPBELL

CHARLOTTETOWN, April 24. —(CP)—J. Walter Jones, who entered the Prince Edward Island cabinet little more than a fortnight ago, was expected last night to become premier in succession to Hon. Thane Campbell, appointed chief justice of the island's supreme court.

Mr. Jones, 63-year-old Liberal member of the legislature for the 4th Queen's district, was designated by a Liberal caucus several weeks ago as Mr. Campbell's successor in the event the premier should retire from politics.

Mr. Jones at present is minister of public welfare, air raid precautions and civilian defence. He was taken into the cabinet April 8, shortly after the caucus of party legislature members had chosen him as the premier's successor.

Red Army Chief Sees Gen. Martel

MOSCOW, April 24.—(AP)—Marshal A. M. Vassilevsky, identified by Tass news agency as chief of the general staff of the Russian army, has received Gen. Giffard Le Quesne Martel of the British military mission to discuss current war problems, it was announced today.

This was the first indication that a formal change had been made in the Russian top command.

Marshal Boris Shaposhnikov, chief of staff for the first year of the Russo-German war, has been ill since last autumn, however, and Vassilevsky is known to have been performing some of his duties.

As co-ordinator in the battle of Stalingrad, Vassilevsky won official commendation and was one of several top officers cited last Dec. 31 for crowning the Germans from that Russian stronghold.

The council of peoples commissars announced in Moscow last Oct. 15 that he had been appointed as one of two deputy commissars of defence to assist Premier Joseph Stalin.

Mysterious Blast Damages Dwelling

MONTREAL, April 24—(CP)—Two persons were treated for shock late yesterday after two mysterious explosions blew a hole 20 feet square in the wall of a house on Notre Dame street east. Damages were estimated at $2,000. Reported recovering from effects of the blasts were Mrs. Cyrille Durocher, 40, and her 17-year-old son, Guy. The explosions occurred in the cellar. The cottage had no connections for household gas.

Allied Armies Roll Back Axis In New Drives

Army, which was hammering at desperate Axis resistance about half-way along the 15-mile road from Enfidaville to Cape Ficho, on the east coast of Tunisia.

RECORD AIR SORTIES

Meanwhile, Allied air forces carried out a record number of 1,500 sorties on Friday, probably dumping more high explosives on the enemy positions than on any previous day.

The reappearance of the American 2nd Corps in the battle for the northeast Tunisian coffin corner was announced by headquarters of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander after a period of greatest secrecy regarding its movements.

The secrecy covered a swift movement of thousands of men and tanks and other vehicles from the southern front—where the forces under Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, joined with the Eighth Army—to the extreme eastern sector.

ATTACKED EARLY FRIDAY

The Americans, supported by heavy U.S. Air Force bombardment, attacked in the first light of day on Friday, striking both north and south of the road through Sedjenane toward Mateur and capturing three dominating hills. The Germans quickly counter-attacked but were driven off several times.

Although only part of the American 2nd Corps was in action, the Allied air force along the Tunisian line were hitting the enemy with everything they could throw into battle and the roads leading to the front were jammed with reinforcements.

The aerial attack was especially heavy in support of the Americans on the north and the French forces —the Corps France d'Afrique— which pushed eastward along the north coast on the American left flank.

The Luftwaffe virtually was driven from the air on Friday and Flying Fortresses extended the Allied attacks as far as enemy supply bases in Sardinia. In all, only six Allied planes were lost.

TANKS IN ACTION

British tanks were thrown into the battle southeast of Medjez after infantry captured the town of Boubellat. The tank spearhead, struck southeast of Boubellat against extremely fierce opposition around Sekkred-El-Koucha, a little salt lake east of the Boubellat-Bou Arada road. An advance of about seven miles had been made in this area and at last reports progress continued at a good rate north of the lake opposition was stronger south of the lake.

The Imperials are fighting to enter the valley between Bou Arada and Pont Du Fahs, which is flat wheatlands cut by occasional wadis by broad enough to give tanks a fair opportunity to manoeuvre. The valley is about two miles wide at Bou Arada and expands to 17 miles near Pont Du Fahs. It is covered with wheat about two feet high at present.

Some 45 miles south of Tunis, the British Eighth Army sent patrols out to test Axis defences in the next line of hills before the Tunis coastal plain and beat off a local enemy counter-attack.

"Radio Algiers said the Eighth Army now had advanced 12 miles along the east coast and was half way between Enfidaville and Bou Ficha.)

Can Overcome North Atlantic U-Boat Threat

HAMILTON, April 24.—(CP)—Navy Minister Macdonald said today he did not think Germany could succeed in cutting the Atlantic life-line between North America and Britain and commended the co-operation of the R.A.F. and the R.C.A.F. in the navy's convoy work.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a luncheon in connection with the opening of the Canadian naval exhibition here, he predicted that the German submarine effort this year would be intensified.

He warned that there would be hard blows dealt in the north Atlantic but if the German submarine strength was growing, so was that of the British Navy and the Canadian Navy and the United States Navy.

PLANES DO SPOTTING

The convoy which is protected both by surface and air craft is much safer than the convoy which is protected by surface craft alone. The navy minister declared. Planes could spot surfaced submarines more quickly than could ships and could attack more speedily.

The co-operation which we of the navy get from the R.A.F. and the R.C.A.F. in our convoy work is admirable and efficient. . . . The air and surface escort operate as a team and the commands of both sea and air look upon the matter of convoy protection as a single problem."

Emphasizing the vital importance of the Atlantic sea routes, Mr. Macdonald said that 77,000,000 deadweight tons of shipping had been carried in convoy across the Atlantic from America to the shores of Europe since the war began.

EXPAND NAVY 30 TIMES

In that period, the Canadian Navy had expanded more than 30 times. It began the war with 1,700 men and 15 ships. It had been developed primarily as an anti-submarine navy and in the latter part of 1942 it was doing nearly half the convoy escort work in the North Atlantic.

This task had not been accomplished without losses, Mr. Macdonald said 10 warships had been lost and 900 men of the naval service had died.

(The warship losses include the destroyers Fraser, Ottawa and Margaree; the Corvettes Windflower, Spikenard, Charlottetown and Levis; the patrol ships Ester and Grandmere, and the minsweeper Bras D'Or. In addition, two Carvettes, the Weyburn and the Camrose, have been lost in the Mediterranean.)

URGES LOAN SUPPORT

The minister appealed for support of the Fourth Victor Loan, in which the minimum objective is $1,100,000,000 and gave figures to show how much money was needed to keep the navy operating. A large torpedo cost $12,000; a corvette cost $1,000,000, a destroyer $4,000,000.

In the fiscal year 1939-40, the first year of the war, the navy expenditures were $11,000,000. In the current year the naval budget was $489,000,000.

Graydon Urges All Canadians To Back Loan

OTTAWA, April 24—(CP)—Gordon Graydon, president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada and leader of the party in the House of Commons, last night appealed to all Canadians to support the forthcoming Victory Loan, declaring: "There is room for full-out participation by everyone that it can be made the sternest answer ever given to the enemy from Canada's home front."

Mr. Graydon, in what he said was his first public announcement as president of the newly-formed Progressive Conservative Association—successor to the Dominion Conservative Association—said the people could "one and all" adopt "a approach" to equality of sacrifice with those serving on war fronts. It was at best a poor substitute but he called on Canadians to support the loan in full measure.

General Strike In U.S. Soft Coal Fields Possible

NEW YORK, April 24.—(AP)—Possibility of a general work stoppage in the United States soft coal fields loomed anew yesterday as negotiations for northern Appalachian bituminous operators left for Washington to go before the war labor board, and John L. Lewis declared the joint wage conference deadlock disrupted.

Part of the southern Appalachian owners' negotiating committee also left to appear Saturday before the W.L.B., to which Labor Secretary Frances Perkins has certified the case, while others remained to attend further debate on the United Mine Workers' demands in the morning.

U.S. Motorists Get New Tires

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP)—Millions of United States motorists will become eligible for top grade tires May 1, an office of price administration announcement disclosed today—coincident with the news that manufacture of "Victory tires" from reclaimed rubber has been stopped.

The O.P.A. statement said every motorist with gasoline rations for more than 240 miles a month may buy grade 1 tires a week from today. Previously a mileage ration of 560 a month had been required for the top tires, and those with 240-to-560 mileage rations got grade II's.

Simultaneously, Rubber Director William Jeffers office confirmed that production of the "Victory tires" was halted March 31, although no previous announcement was made.

The decision to make grade 1 tires more widely available was based, O.P.A. said, on information from Jeffers that supplies of grade II tires are "inadequate to meet requirements of motorists eligible for them." It added that comparatively more grade I tires are available in relation to those eligible for them.

C.C.F. in Ontario Adopts Platform

TORONTO, April 24.—(CP)—A C.C.F. government in Ontario would "free the people from the power of the monopolists now in control of all important business and industry." It was stated in a 15-point political platform endorsed at today's session of the annual conference of the Ontario section of the party.

Announced by the party's provincial leader, E. B. Jolliffe of Toronto, the platform would "bring those monopolies under social ownership, with immense savings to farmers, workers and consumers."

Other major platform planks included provision for the passing of an "effective" trade union act dealing with collective bargaining, reduction in the cost of bread and coal by the setting up of municipally-owned utilities, and establishment of non-profit distribution of milk to benefit farmers and consumers.

Co-operatives would be encouraged and marketing boards would be reorganized to give farmers full representation.

Japan Offers Great Target For Bombing

By ROBERT MUSEL

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

Copyright 1943, by British United Press

LONDON, April 24.— Prime Minister Winston Churchill's promise that the Royal Air Force will throw its full weight into the eventual assault on Japan gave promise today of one of the most concentrated aerial offensives in history.

Once the Axis has been defeated in Europe, it was pointed out, Britain and the United States can afford to concentrate large forces of four-engined bombers in China and—should Russia finally be drawn into the Pacific war—Siberia for full-scale raids on Japan proper.

The size of the forces presumably would be determined only by the supplies which could be transported to them, probably largely by air at least in the initial stage of the offensive.

VITAL AREAS

Japan proper represents a considerably smaller target area than Europe and the concentration of bombs consequently could be much greater. Whereas there are scores of important industrial, military and naval target areas in the several million square miles comprising German and occupied Europe, compact Japan offers only six major target areas and all are within 300 square miles.

Most important is Osaka with its iron and steel works, shipyards and munition works. Next in importance come Tokyo itself, Nagoya, Nagasaki, Yawata, and Nikko, which together produce most of Japan's iron and steel plates, arms, munitions, ships and electric power.

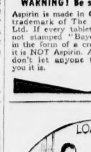

Coffee Arriving in United States by All-Rail Route

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(CP)—Coffee now is arriving in the United States by an all-rail route from El Salvador and Guatemala via Mexico, the office of price administration has disclosed.

The amount of coffee obtainable from El Salvador and Guatemala is not sufficient to have an important effect on the supply in this country, O.P.A. said yesterday, but added that the all-rail route will help relieve the shipping shortage.

Knox Declares '42 Ship Output Exceeds Losses

WASHINGTON, April 24—(AP)—Navy secretary Frank Knox, declaring there was an "obvious error" in a Senate committee report on shipbuilding and heavy ship losses, said yesterday that overall Allied ship construction in 1942 actually exceeded sinkings.

The sinking loss figure of 1,000,000 tons a month which was given in the committee account this week was described by Knox as coming from some "unauthorized and uniformed source because the true figures have never been given out."

Discussing the report at a press conference, Knox emphasized that he was not criticising it or attempting to place himself in conflict with the committee.

"OBVIOUS ERROR"

What he desired to do, he said, was call attention to an "obvious error" as to sinkings and ship construction.

In this connection he made two main points:

First, he said that the loss figures of 1,000,000 tons a month or 12,000,000 tons for the year were wrong, although he did not explain whether they were too great or too small.

Second, he said that overall Allied building exceeded overall Allied ship losses.

The Senate committee was explicit, in its section on construction figures, in using the term "deadweight tons," whereas in its discussion of sinkings, it spoke of "tons of shipping without saying whether they were deadweight tons or gross tons.

GIVEN IN GROSS TONS

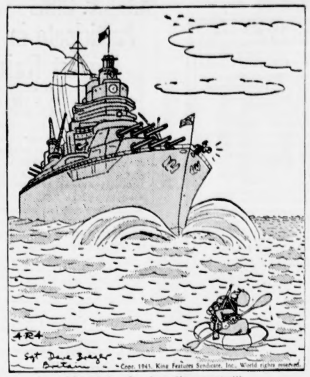

Knox said apparently the committee report on sinkings was an expression of losses in gross tons.

A single deadweight ton is about 50 per cent greater than a single gross ton.

Canuck Fighter Squadron Bags First Tunisia Victim

AN ADVANCED AIRFIELD, Tunisia, April 24.—(CP)—A R.C.A.F. fighter squadron has destroyed its first victim in the battle of Tunisia.

It was announced yesterday that four pilots from four Canadian provinces shared in the destruction of an enemy torpedo bomber in a brief engagement which probably saved an important unit of the Royal naval convoy in the Mediterranean.

Sharing credit for shooting down a Heinkel III were Sqdn. Ldr. Brad Foster of Montreal, Flt. Lt. Bill Pentland of Calgary, FO. Douglas Bruce of Penticton, B.C., and PO. J. H. Harmer of Toronto.

A formation from the squadron was escorting the convoy off Gabes when Foster spotted the big Heinkel coming in fast and low to launch its torpedoes at a naval craft. He dived on the enemy plane, followed by Pentland and Harmer.

The Montrealer's first squirt of cannon and machine-gun fire winged the Heinkel and after Pentland and Harmer each fired a burst it broke into flames. One of the five-man crew leaped from the aircraft while the firing was still in progress and fell 50 feet into the sea like a human bullet.

Bruce, who was watching the battle from above, came down fast to finish off the flaming torpedo bomber with a final blast which literally blew it to pieces at wavetop height.

The Nazi pilot, one leg broken by a cannon shell, was picked up by a naval launch which also rescued a companion who had jumped and who escaped injury despite terrific impact with the water.

The Canadians suffered no injury or damage to their aircraft.

Hit Rail Centre

200 Red Planes Hammer Reich

LONDON, April 24.—(CP)—A striking force of 200 Russian long-range bombers battered the East Prussian railway centre of Insterburg, on the German trunk supply line to the north Russian front, for more than two hours Thursday night and left the entire city in flames, a special Soviet communique said last night.

It was added that a single bomber was lost in this sixth raid of the big Russian aerial offensive from the east which started April 10 with an attack on Koenigsberg. It was the first time the Russians had concentrated on Insterburg. Previous targets were Danzig and Tilsit.

Two hundred is the largest number the Russians ever had mentioned using in the new wave of raids keyed with the R.A.F. and U.S. aerial onslaught to keep Hitler's citadels under fire from both sides.

The raid was announced in a special communique which said the raid lasted more than two hours.

"Many conflagrations of military and industrial targets in the city resulted from bombing and at the end of the raid the entire city was enveloped in flames," said the communique. "The fires were accompanied by numerous powerful explosions.

"All our planes but one returned to their bases."

A Letter from Home!

Pictured above is what remained of an Edmonton street car, Calder car No. 42, which had the front end wrecked when it crashed into the rear of a Highlands car No. 49 on 109 street at 98 avenue Thursday night. The motorman of the above car and one woman passenger on the Highlands tram were injured.

Regulations forbid individuals sending newspapers overseas. The Edmonton Bulletin prints the news of the week in letter form. This letter covers the period from April 19 to April 24. Clip it out and send it to your loved ones and friends.

Dear

Summer weather visited Edmonton over the last week-end, and a brilliant, warm sun brought thousands of residents out to golf courses, picnic grounds and hiking trails. With a high temperature reading on Sunday of 71, the thermometer reached the highest mark so far this year. Even by late evening the weather was still warm and crowds promenaded up and down Jasper avenue reluctant to turn in for the night.

Now for the local news highlights for the past week:

Monday

Request by the Alberta government for priorities on road-building equipment needed to make improvements on the highway between Edmonton and Dawson Creek, B.C., has been refused by the Dominion government, Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, announced today. This places the Alberta government in almost a hopeless position to effect the improvements to meet the tremendous increase in traffic through northern war projects.

For the first time in history, the quiet solitude of Canada's peaceful northland was shattered by the crash of exploding aerial bombs as a tactical aircraft of the United States Army Air Force made two separate attacks over the week-end on ice jams in the Athabaska river near Fort McMurray, where floods had threatened supplies and equipment for north war projects valued at more than $1,000,000. The Army plane, a medium bomber, with a crew of four, flew from Edmonton Saturday afternoon, when four medium calibre bombs were dropped on the ice eight miles below McMurray. On Sunday morning the bomber flew north again and dropped eight more bombs. Good results were obtained.

Farmers of Alberta cannot expect more than 300 or 400 conscientious objectors to be released from alternative service camps to help on farms, under recent orders issued by the Dominion department of labor, O. S. Longman, deputy minister of agriculture for Alberta, said today. "This number will not provide much relief for the thousands of farmers requiring extra help," Mr. Longman said.

Tuesday

Quota for Edmonton in the Fourth Victory Loan from general sales division, the payroll savings section, and the special names lists has been set at $8,805,000, it was announced at Loan headquarters. The amount expected to be obtained from each division is $4,600,000 from the general sales and payroll savings divisions, and $4,205,000 from special names.

Edmonton Typographical Union No. 604, in a resolution presented to the Trades and Labor Council last night, charged that the food index figures published by the Dominion government in the Labor Gazette as representing commodity prices in Edmonton were not accurate, and were much below the actual prices charged in stores for such commodities. The resolution asked that a special committee of the Trades and Labor Council be appointed to investigate the alleged inaccuracies in these food prices and to make a formal protest to Ottawa against what was termed "such an unfair situation."

Wartime Housing Ltd., Toronto, a crown company, will erect 250 homes in Edmonton early this summer to relieve the serious housing shortage here, Mayor John W. Fry said on his return from eastern Canada today. The mayor had gone east to complete negotiations with War me Housing Ltd. for the construction of these homes, and was successful in having the number to be built increased from 200 to 250.

Delay by the Regional War Labor Board in dealing with wage increase requests from two Edmonton unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, was strongly criticized by delegates to the Edmonton Trades and Labor Council at a meeting last night. A five-man committee was appointed to interview Hon. E. C. Manning, minister of trade and industry and chairman of the Board, seeking immediate action on the wage increase requests. The unions affected are the Packing Plant Employees' Union and the Edmonton Beverage Dispensers' Union.

Ottawa Commandos went one up in their bid to take the Allan Cup by scoring a 4-3 victory over Victoria Army in the first game of the best-of-five Dominion final in Winnipeg last night. Pte. Neil Colville, formerly of Edmonton, led Commandos with two goals and one assist.

Victoria R.C.A.F. won the western Canada senior men's basketball title last night by defeating Edmonton R.C.A.F. Red Devils 32-24, to sweep the three-of-five series with three straight wins. All games were played in Vancouver.

Wednesday

More than $700,000 will be spent during the fiscal year 1943-44 in the development of the Fort McMurray tar sands and other oil exploration projects in the Province of Alberta, Hon. James A. MacKinnon, minister of trade and commerce and M.P. for West Edmonton, stated on his arrival here today. In addition to the tar sands development, Mr. MacKinnon said that geological survey parties will be maintained in the central and northern part of the province, aerial photography work will be carried out over an area of approximately 2,000 square miles, and research work continued in connection with the tar sands and the Vermilion oil field.

Approximately 2,500,000 pounds of sugar will be allocated in the Edmonton ration district for preserving and jam making this summer, it was estimated today by ration board officials. Protest from residents in the vicinity of the Magrath home, Ada Boulevard, resulted in the Zoning Appeal Board Tuesday turning down the request of a Calgary purchaser of the property to have it re-zoned as a multiple dwelling. As a result the deal for the purchase of the property has been called off, and the home returned to the "for sale" listings with the city land department.

Edmonton's three publicly-owned swimming pools will be opened for the summer season on May 15, it was announced Wednesday by A. W. Haddow, city engineer.

Thursday

Alberta liquor permit holders will be allowed only one dozen pint bottles of beer during May, J. A. King, chairman of the Liquor Control Board, said today. Business hours of vendor stores in the province will be shortened by three hours a day, Mr. King also announced. The changes in hours will become effective Tuesday, May 4.

Drilling by his organization in the Vermilion oil fields will start as soon as weather permits, R. C. Vaughan, president of the Canadian National Railways, stated in an interview here today as he stopped over for a brief period on his way to the Pacific coast. Opening gun in Edmonton's "Back the Attack" Victory Loan campaign will be fired by Hon. J. L. Ilsley, minister of finance, who will arrive in the city on Sunday to speak at a series of meetings here.

Completing 30 years in the United States foreign service, John Randolph, American Consul-General here, is retiring on June 30. Taking of the annual census of the City of Edmonton will start about mid-May. At least 50 canvassers will be employed on the job.

Ottawa Commandos made it two straight in the best-of-five Allan Cup series at Regina last night by holding off Victoria Army's last period drive to win by a 6-4 score. The teams now move to Calgary, where the third game will be played Saturday evening.

Friday

Two persons were injured, one seriously, and at least a dozen other persons had miraculous escapes, when a southbound street car crashed into the rear of a second car, also proceeding south, which had stopped on 109 street at 98 avenue, to disembark a passenger. The accident occurred at 10:45 p.m. Thursday. The injured are Motorman Nick J. Halisky, 28, of 10660 98 street, who suffered a broken left arm and leg, and possible other injuries, and Mrs. Thelma Gerow, 27, of 10726 98 avenue, suffering from shock. The accident marked the third involving street cars in that locality. In the crash, a Calder car, No. 42, operated by Halisky, had the front end completely demolished as it plowed into the rear of Highlands car No. 49. Mrs. Gerow was alighting from the Highlands car when the rear-end collision occurred. She was thrown heavily to the pavement.

Saturday

Thousands of residents attended church services in celebration of Good Friday. There was a fairly heavy rain during yesterday afternoon, but today it is clear and the sun is shining brightly. It looks as though the Easter Parade should be a big success.

Quite a few hockey fans left here today to see the third game of the Allan Cup final series between Ottawa Commandos and Victoria Army. There are Edmonton boys on both teams and they will be assured of much hometown support. Commandos are favored for the series, as they boast the far-famed New York Rangers' forward line of Neil and Mac Colville, and Alex. Shibicky.

Take good care of yourself and all the luck in the world until next week.

Primate Calls British People "Back to God"

LONDON, April 24—(CP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury called on the British people in a broadcast last night to make a "back to God" resolution.

"Things are not altogether well with us," he said.

"We thank God for the splendid qualities our people have showa—courage in danger, comradeship in service, perseverance in effort.

"But the decline in honesty has been very sharp and steep. Our standard of conduct in matters of sex is very lax. These things will bring terrible consequences if we will not change our outlook or in the old phrase 'repent'."

"Men who are absent from their homes must remember they have the same duty of faithfulness as their womenfold at home," he said.

MOTION PICTURES

A KEY INDUSTRY ON THE INSPIRATIONAL FRONT

From the war factories and shipyards of Canada are pouring the planes and tanks, guns and ships to arm the United Nations in the all-out fight for Democracy!

Week by week our power must grow until it sweeps the earth clean once more so that free men may live again in peace and security. That is our Resolve.

To carry it through, our minds must be as keen as our swords, our hearts as strong as our tanks, our spirits as buoyant as our planes.

For morale is a mighty force . . . as vital as the materials of war themselves.

Just as it is the job of some industries to provide the weapons to keep 'em flying, keep 'em rolling and keep 'em shooting, so it is the job of the Motion Picture Industry to keep 'em smiling!

That is our war-time job. We cannot build bombers, tanks or guns . . . but we can build morale we can give Canada the hours of carefree relaxation which will make its work hours more productive, the mental stimulus that will carry us on with heads up through dark days and bright, through good news and bad . . . to Victory.

We can . . . and we will!

Famous Players theatres are proud of the part they are privileged to play in maintaining morale.

Canadians Fly With R.A.F. Squadron Based in Russia

LONDON, April 24.—(CP)—With the return to Britain of an R.A.F. squadron which had been serving in Russia, it now is possible to reveal that several members of the R.C.A.F. were included in the squadron's personnel, said an R.C.A.F. overseas news service dispatch released today.

Devil himself. I have seen one Russian fighter go up and pick three Jerries without assistance."

REGARD RECIPROCATED

The Russians apparently reciprocated this regard, for when the Canadians left, "they (the Russians) blessed us, they kissed us and they begged us to return some day," said McGregor.

Other Canadians who served in Russia flying medium bombers during much of the last winter included Flt. Sgt. Lloyd Honan, Hanley, Sask.; FO. Joe Merrill, London, Ont.; FO. Alex Wilson, Vancouver; Flt. Sgt. Doc Turnbull, Leamington, Ont.; Sgt. R. J. O'Neil, Detroit; Flt. Sgt. Wally Hood, Montreal; and PO. Vic Vicery of Toronto, whose sister was the Sergeant-Major of the first contingent of the Canadian Women's Army Corps to arrive in Britain.

"We didn't pay much attention to the Jerries, although we were only 25 minutes from the front line," McGregor said. "They'd come over every now and then and try to bomb our drome but Flying alongside the Russian air force, the R.A.F. squadron was engaged principally in the protection of convoys carrying war supplies to Russia. Flt. Sgt. Ken (Scotty) McGregor, of Port Arthur, Ont., told the story of the Canadians' adventure.

He now is serving as a navigator with a Canadian bomber group. All the R.C.A.F. fliers, said McGregor, returned full of admiration for the Russians. "They are among the world's truly great fighters," he added. "They are not afraid of the their bomb-aimers must have taken a mail-order course, because it wasn't often a hit was scored."

Most of the crews felt quite at home with the Russians, and by the time they left knew enough of the language to converse with them, order food and talk to the girls. The countryside, McGregor said, reminded him of northern Ontario or British Columbia, with the rocky hills, bright blue skies and tall evergreen trees.

DIDN'T LIKE FOOD

"Russian Food," he recalled, "was about the only thing we didn't care for. A meal usually consisted of six courses, all fish, followed by a dessert of meat of some kind. We Canadians didn't care too much for the native drink of vodka, either, which was strong enough to use for cigarette lighter fluid. We just stuck to the old bottle of beer."

McGregor said he was much impressed with the high morale of Russian citizens. All were doing something to help win the war. Women were operating trains, laying railway tracks and building houses. He once saw a Russian fighter plane coming down in flames. The pilot had bailed out. An ME109 appeared and flew in to machine-gun the pilot, but before he could get in a good burst he was shot down himself by another Russian.

"Those 'Huskies' are damned quick on the take-off," said McGregor, "and they're good pilots. Right after he knocked off the Jerry, 'Huskie' flew in over our 'drome doing a double victory roll. Their Russian-made aircraft are all right too, especially the Yak which I on their tunics.

Yanks Seize Isles Without Firing Shot

The United States navy disclosed in Washington Friday that American forces have established a base in the Ellice Islands flanking the shipping routes between the United states and Australia. U.S. Navy censors then released the following eye-witness story of the landing there. The date the story was written was not revealed.—EDITOR.

By TOM YARBROUGH

OFF ELLICE ISLANDS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC — (Delayed) — (AP) — United States marines completed the job of moving into the Ellice Islands a few minutes ago without firing a shot.

They arrived yesterday morning and met no opposition whatever in planting themselves in the midst of this group of tiny coral isles astride the international dateline, just south of the Equator and on the south flank of the Japanese-held Gilbert Islands.

The Ellice group is 750 miles northwest of Pago Pago in Samoa and 575 miles north of Suva in the Fiji Islands.

PREPARE "RECEPTION"

The Japanese are only about 500 miles away in the Gilberts and the marines are busy preparing a reception for any attempt to dispute their occupation.

The marines went ashore on Funafuti Island. Funafuti encloses a fine lagoon where seaplanes can be based. Lord and flat Funafuti Island might be suitable for an airdrome runway extending the United Nations' aerial search and bomb radius by several hundred miles.

takes its name from the sort of native mountain goat."

ONCE FORCED DOWN

McGregor said the bomber in which he was flying once was forced down on a Russian air force airdrome. The men there had never before seen British airmen or heard English spoken. And they pounced on the crew as soon as their aircraft rolled to a standstill.

"They took a dim view of us at first," McGregor added, "and we thought we were in for a bit of trouble until one of them spotted the 'Canada' flash on my shoulders. I was the only one who wore it. Then and grins broke out on their faces, and they exclaimed 'Ah—Kanadiana'.

"Everything was rosy after that." The R.A.F. squadron gave all its bombers to the Red air force when it left Russia and boarded a British cruiser for England, but before they left a representative of the Soviet government presented each officer and airmen with a red enamel and gold star as a token of his country's esteem.

The air ministry since has authorized the fliers to wear the stars

Claim Japanese Slay Prisoners Taken in Burma

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN

NEW DELHI, April 24.—(AP)—Official sources declared last night that the Japanese "murdered in cold blood" a substantial number of British and Indian prisoners of war captured on the Burma front.

A spokesman said there was "authentic eye-witness evidence" for this fresh disclosure which comes on the heels of President Roosevelt's announcement that some of the American airmen captured during last April's Tokyo raid were executed.

BAYONETS USED

Escaped prisoners, the spokesman said, declared that "the Japs are using British and Indian prisoners of war to carry supplies" and that "those unfit for work were bayoneted to death."

The bayonet was used, said the spokesman in quoting the prisoners, rather than a waste of bullets in order to conserve ammunition.

Asked whether Britain proposes retaliatory action, the spokesman said that would do no good, explaining:

"The Japs don't care. The Jap attitude is that a prisoner of war is as good as dead for he never will be able to go back to Japan. He is in permanent disgrace."

Simultaneously it was announced that Indo-British casualties in the four-months campaign on the Arakan front in Burma totalled 3,514, of which 1,572 were British and 1,942 Indian.

The casualties included 392 killed, 171 British and 221 Indian, and the remainder either were wounded or listed as missing.

Plane Workers Demand Ruling On Rest Periods

VANCOUVER, April 24.—(CP)—Following a meeting of executive and shop stewards of Aeronautical Mechanics' Union (A.F.L.) a message was sent yesterday to Labor Minister Mitchell urging a commission to be appointed by 10 a.m. Saturday to pass upon the question of 10-minute rest periods in Boeing Aircraft and Canadian Pacific Airlines plants. There are 6,000 union employees in the two plants.

The message said: "A feeling of unrest prevails and is increasing, and if allowed to continue will have serious effect on aircraft production, and situation will be impossible to control.

"Urgent that commission be appointed by 10 o'clock Saturday morning. We propose to vote on your action up to Saturday, April 24."

Red Cross Rejects Proposal to Probe Polish Executions

BERNE, April 24.—(AP)—Requests by the German Red Cross and the Polish government-in-London for an international Red Cross investigation of alleged execution of Polish prisoners in Russia were rejected in effect yesterday.

The international organization announced willingness in principle" to assist in appointment of neutral experts to examine the German-Polish claims but only if all parties concerned so requested and only under principles laid down under an international Red Cross memorandum of Sept. 12, 1939.

R.C.A.F. Units Participate in Biggest Raid

By DOUGLAS GREEN

OTTAWA, April 24. — (CP)— Planes of the R.C.A.F. bomber group participated in the largest night operation of the year when more than 600 aircraft of bomber command heavily attacked two of the enemy's largest and most important armament centres April 16, said an R.C.A.F. communique released last night on behalf of Air Marshal Harold Edwards, air officer commanding in chief, R.C.A.F. overseas.

From all operations, 11 bombers and two fighters are missing, the pilot of one missing fighter is safe.

The communique, covering operations of R.C.A.F. squadrons stationed in Great Britain during the week ending April 22, said Pilsen, in Czechoslovakia, and Mannheim and Ludwigshafen, in Germany, were targets of the smashing attack.

HIT SKODA WORKS

"Our Halifax squadrons," it continued, "were part of the strong force which penetrated to the Skoda armament works at Pilsen. Weather over the target was good, and the crews were able to make visual identification of their objectives, which were heavily bombed."

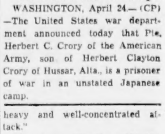

The bombing force which attacked the twin town of Mannheim Ludwigshafen included many R.C.A.F. Wellington squadrons. This attack began shortly before the raid on Pilsen. Clear weather and good visibility prevailed throughout the operation, and "good results" were seen from the bombing, which was concentrated into about 20 minutes.

On April 20, R.C.A.F. Halifax bombers hammered at Stettin, largest German port on the Baltic, as part of a force of four-engined bombers which carried out "a very heavy and well-concentrated attack."

"Two hours after the raid," the communique reported, "a pilot of a reconnaissance aircraft reported a pall of smoke 15,000 feet in height over the town which could be seen from Rostock, 100 miles away."

Come to EASTER SERVICES

There isn't likely to be one among us who hasn't much to pray for this Easter. There'll be a prayer in the heart of every man in battle: in foxholes on land; on stormy, mine-laden seas; in the traffic lanes of the air. All outdoors is our boys' Church in time of war — with only a chaplain's calm, steady voice to speak the Easter message . . . for those boys lucky enough to have a chaplain near!

Our boys will be praying this Easter: for fulfillment of their faith that "right makes might" . . . that the United Nations may soon be victorious and restore a peaceful life to the great brotherhood of man the world over. Our boys will be praying too that they may soon be back in the folds of their families, and that next Easter may find them attending services with those they love in the Churches "back home."

And we who make up their memories of home — how deep and good and sure is the prayer that wells up in our hearts, and brings the tears of hope brimming over in our eyes! We are the mothers and fathers, grayed with the years, who reared our sons from the helplessness of babyhood to the all-sacrificing strength of fighting manhood. We are the wives who've gallantly smiled each time we've had to say "good bye" — first, when our men enlisted; then after each visit home on furlough, and finally when they sailed away. We are too, the children, for whose future security and freedom they fight.

Oh yes, so many of us have so much to pray for this Easter. Surely these are prayers which will be heard, for they must echo His own: He who taught the glory of "Peace on earth"! His words: our prayers: the lives of those already fallen in battle: all these shall not have been in vain! So with courage and conviction, let us go to Church for Easter Services. And after prayer, let us go forth, each to the duties we have assumed as our responsibility in quickening the time in which those we love shall be Victorious!

Prayer is good for the spirit, invigorating it and giving us the stamina to go on through whatever days of darkness may yet come. And the will to win: the work that we perform to win — these added to our prayers are what those who have gone forward to safeguard us from oppression — want of us. It is so little for us to do!

This Easter Message is brought to you by the following Firms and Citizens
With a fervent prayer for Victory before another Easter . . .

Mr. Ilsley's Visit

Edmonton's hospitality is traditional. But the welcome extended to the Minister of Finance will naturally be more enthusiastic because his visit is timed to coincide with the opening of the Fourth Victory Loan campaign. This event is in fact the reason for Mr. Ilsley's coming. Unique distinction is thus conferred upon Edmonton, which the citizens will not fail to appreciate. It is here that the campaign workers will have the benefit of personal advice from the director of the nation's finances as the greatest financial effort in the country's history gets under way, and the public the opportunity of hearing his key-note message.

It has been customary for Ministers of Finance to open loan campaigns by speeches in Montreal or Toronto. The departure in this instance is significant. Edmonton is not, like those cities, a great pool of accumulated wealth. It is distinctively a city of working people. And it is upon people who work with hands and heads that the success of this loan depends. Men of wealth and great corporations are counted on to supply about half the money needed. The other $500,000,000 must come from savings, wages, salaries, business profits and farm incomes. It is appropriate that Edmonton should be chosen as the place where the Minister will give his send-off speech in a bond-selling effort which must be directed particularly to people of these classes.

V

Production Is Vital

The United Nations are headed for victory. Very largely because of the astounding capacity they have shown to produce raw materials and to fashion these into the tools of war. Had they not been able to more than match the Axis powers in production, they could not have hoped to save themselves from defeat and their peoples from slavery. No numbers of men and no amount of courage can make up for lack of armament. Battles are won on the side with the big battalions unless the big battalions have more or better planes and tanks and guns than the enemy. The French army was knocked out by a better-armed foe not more than one-quarter its size.

One of the great industrial concerns of Canada—The International Nickel Company—is publishing large advertisements in the newspapers to stress the point that we must carry forward into the post-war years production on a level never approached in pre-war years. Is this a waste of money? Not at all. Industry, business, farmers, wage-earners, professional men, are all vitally interested in keeping post-war production at the possible maximum. Otherwise we cannot hope for a world of peaceful or prosperous. President Roosevelt a while ago said that social security can only exist in a country that has a "dynamic economy." That is a bed-rock truth, which Canadians and people in all other countries should take to heart. Everybody's future is staked on maintaining a "dynamic economy," in Canada and elsewhere.

Summer Offensives

On the eastern front the stage seems to be set for a Nazi offensive when summer comes, or for a Russian offensive, or for both. By recovering their position on the Donets and the railway centre of Kharkov the Nazis hold a springboard from which to launch another drive into the Caucasus. But the advance to Velekie Luki has put the Russians in equally good position to drive toward the Baltic coast or south against the communication lines of the enemy. Both drives may start when the ground dries.

The Russians however have the advantage of ample reserves of manpower. Hitler no doubt has men enough also for a third summer offensive, provided he massees them on the eastern front at the risk of leaving his western and southern borders vulnerable. For to make up the garrisons he must maintain from the Mediterranean to Norway, the Fuehrer will have to draw very heavily on satellite contscripts. His armies are still millions strong, but not all the millions are Nazis in their prime.

Provided they can get munitions, the Russians would seem to have at least equal chances in the coming struggle, even if there were no "Second Front" in prospect. But there is. It is not only in prospect, but a calculable certainty.

There is nothing in the situation to suggest that Mr. Churchill was wrong in saying victory cannot come to the Allies this year. But it is not inconceivable that Italy should be knocked out of the war this year, and the Balkans cleared of the enemy or an Allied position firmly established in France. The possibility that the Russians may launch a summer offensive very much improves the chance that these things may happen.

V

Pushing the Job

It did not take the Allied high command long to decide whether to lay siege to the Axis forces in the mountains of northern Tunisia, or go in and finish the job. The British 1st Army in the north, the 8th Army in the south, the Americans and French in the centre, are undertaking to shoot their way through the passes and over the ridges, crowd the enemy into an ever-narrowing space, and "liquidate" him one way or the other. Since it apparently cannot be evacuated, the Axis army has the choice to surrender or die.

If the capture of Tunisia were the objective, it is fairly likely that siege operations would have been preferred. These would have cost fewer casualties than must be expected in attacks upon strong prepared positions, and hunger would have been a powerful ally of the Allies. But Tunisia is only a barrier and a bridgehead, needed to give the Allies full control of the Mediterranean and a jumping-off place for an attack on Hitler's Europe. That is why the fighting is being pushed. The sooner it is ended, the less time Hitler and Mussolini will have to fortify the coast from Spain to Turkey.

V

It is disclosed that Charles M. Schwab died in debt. His fortune was once estimated at $450,000,000, and he refused an offer of $50,000,000 for a half-interest in one of his industrial concerns. In prosperity he gave generously to charitable and educational causes. "Riches have wings."

V

May 17 will be "blue" Monday for the heavy meat-eater, for that is the day we all go on a ration of two pounds per week —exceeding of course farm people who "grow their own." The results of the experiment will be interesting when time discloses them. Perhaps the carnivorous chap will find he can get along better on the reduced supply. In advance the only thing certain is that the vegetarian will be in luck.

V

The 4th Indian division of Montgomery's 8th Army went into action in Egypt at the end of 1940. By the middle of February last the division had sustained 15,000 casualties, but had captured 100,000 German and Italian prisoners. The division was recruited of course among the fighting tribes of the north. It is made up of the kind of men Gandhi and his pacifists think they could rule against their wills. If there wasn't a world war on, it would be interesting—if blood-curdling—to see them try to do it.

A hat is an ward off a cold in the head or a bout of sinus.

A hat can keep the blinding sun out of your eyes.

A hat can protect the wind from robbing your hair of natural oils.

A hat can stave off a batch of freckles.

A hat can keep your head nice and dry in the rain and snow.

But some women wear hats because—

A hat can be a cosmetic, a beauty treatment, almost a plastic surgeon.

A hat can pretend your skin is magnolia. (Try a biege veil.)

A hat can uplift face-lines that are downward bent. (Upcurving brim.)

A hat can feign height. (Rauche hat or vice-versa skull-cap.)

A hat can deepen the baby-blue of your eyes. (Blue hat.)

A hat can soften a sharp profile (flower hat); broaden a brow, balance a receding chin, minimize a poor feature, play up a good one.

And some women can wear hats because—

A hat can lie like a trooper about your age.

A hat can pick you up when your best friend has let you down.

A hat can introduce you—as a saint or a siren.

A hat can help make a gent throw his hat in the ring.

A hat can be one bit of nonsense in your new all-sense wardrobe.

Of course, you could go without any hat at all. If you have the prettiest face in the world, perhaps you don't need any beautifier, and blandishment, any lift, any flattery any ornament, any help, any of the co-operation that a hat can give. One face in a million may not . . . but the other 999,999 will go for a hat.

Flower-Laden

For the Easter parade tomorrow there will be flowered hats and feathered hats this season, and hats so dramatic that you will be intrigued.

The millinery industry, presenting recently a preview of new hats for spring and summer, used as its slogan "Hats are functional, hats are fun."

To women who are to wear these pretties are going to like both angles, for the hats on the dance floor are cut low and tilted, and designed to hug the head comfortably. They are either tiny fluffs, little more than a headband in size, or cartwheels eye-catching in their beauty.

Among the tailored types presented are such items as the sailor, the fedora, with forward dip. It looks so right that it is forecast that it will be carried over into the fall season. All sports hats have been relived by softly rolling the brim and trimming the hat with flowers, feathers or ribbon bows. Some are mere minatures — little more than doll hats—but they have the rectangular crown and rolled brim that identify the fedora.

Others that women will find easy to wear are the little sailors with brims, lower trimmed, or made of layers of tulle, or made entirely of bright colored fabric like plaid taffeta.

A third suit type is the beret. This comfortable hat is revived in various sizes and fabrics. One popular style in chamois colored felt is shirred to a hand-crocheted band and worn in halo effect. Another, smaller in size, is copied from the Greek's native hat.

While the forward tilt is new in the posing of hats decked with flowers, most milliners prefer to show them behind the pompadour. While the milliners and hairdressers have done a good job of mating lines of the coiffure and the hat, popular preference seems to be still for the hair rolled into a pompadour and the hat posed behind it.

Flattering is the word for hats. They display all that the women are going to shift their affections from the amusing and beguiling feminine fashions that have put hats on their heads for flattery rather than practical purposes.

Refugee Conference

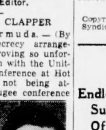

Parley Is Exploratory; Only Victory Offers Solution

Mr. Clapper stopped off in Bermuda on his way to Sweden to report on the problems of that nervous neutral.—Editor.

By RAYMOND CLAPPER

HAMILTON, Bermuda. — (By Wireless) — The secrecy arrangements which are proving so unfortunate in connection with the United Nations food conference at Hot Springs, Va., are not being attempted at the refugee conference here.

The meeting at this isolated island resort is being conducted with as much freedom for the press as is possible in any international conference. Officials representing both the Washington and London governments seem determined to avoid the mistakes that have been made with Axis conferences. They are most cordial and co-operative in explaining the refugee problem.

Raymond Clapper

Correspondents have repeatedly telephoned conference officials for an appointment. They were invited to come in any time.

The first session of the conference is open to the press, but naturally the working discussions will be private. Yet the delegates are glad to have newspaper correspondents come and discuss conference problems with direct quotation or for background information.

There has been some comment in the States because this conference is being held at an isolated hotel here. The hotel is a small one of the guest-house type, widely known as "The Horizon." To get to it you drive a one-horse, open-face hack. Ours was driven by an enormous Negro in a white tropical helmet. It takes half an hour from my hotel to the conference hotel. The drive is along a narrow road hedged with hibiscus and oleander, and past lily fields now in full bloom for Easter. Normally this is the peak of the Bermuda Easter season. But the American tourist trade is taken over the big hotels. There are no tourists.

"The Horizon" is cramped, and there is room for the press to live there as originally planned. But there is every facility for access to the conference. The hotel grounds are open. There are no armed guards asking passes.

The conference is largely an exploratory affair. At most it will only recommend a program for future consideration by the United Nations. It will consider the plight of refugees without regard to race or creed, but it won't deal with the question of sending food to occupied countries. The policy on that is firm, because food is considered a military matter.

Also, the question of potential refugees now inside Germany, while it will be considered, must be approached cautiously. There have been some hints that Germany might be willing to let the Jews out of Germany and the occupied countries. The feeling among the delegates here is that Germany would make no move of that kind from humanitarian motives, but only for military reasons that would benefit Germany. It would be natural for Germany to try to unload excess population on the Allies, to ease its own burden and add to that of the Allies. So all hints in that direction are viewed with deep suspicion.

The chief attention here will be given to making arrangements for refugees who are already out of Germany — such as the 15,000 in Spain. If these could be moved on to some place near the continent of Europe, then perhaps Spain could take more refugees from the occupied countries. The refugee problem is a series of questions of that kind. There is no general solution except victory, but it may be possible to ease the pressure some, although frankly no large hopes should be built on this conference.

No matter how hard the conference works, Europe is bound to remain a heartbreak house until Hitler and his cruel regime are defeated and liquidated.

Parliament Is Bogged Down

Endless Debates on Many Subjects Slow Up Work Of Nation

By B. T. RICHARDSON

OTTAWA: Consider the following speech as a model of brevity. It was delivered by A. W. Neill, the member for Comox-Alberni, whose tall, spare figure and sharp tongue have served ornamentally and regularly in the House of Commons since 1921:

"I suggest (said Mr. Neill) that we stop playing politics and get on with the business of the country."

That was on April 5. No one paid any attention to Mr. Neill. Nor did anyone pay much attention to Mr. Ilsley who, on April 7, said: "I would like to appeal to the House of Commons to assist the government to get ahead with very important business. It seems almost impossible for us to make any headway . . ."

But as late as April 16, Prime Minister King was conducting a post-mortem on lost time. "We have now reached the Easter recess and not a single item in supply has been discussed thus far," he said. That was on the 3rd day of the session. The House had completed two debates in which no restrictions apply to the length of speeches, the debate on the speech from the throne and the budget debate. It had taken a week to appoint a committee on social security and another week to appoint a committee on reconstruction.

Almost all the purely war business had been shouldered aside in favor of oratory of mixed quality from the members. All waiting was the war appropriation of $3.9 billions, and the mutual aid bill of $1 billion. Also, there was the appointment of the war expenditures committee, which is the average committee that is looking over war costs to see if there is value for the money. Still waiting was the debate on the radio committee which, as far as it relates to the war, can wait as long as necessary.

The people's elected representatives are not all the time-wasting and loquacious characters. Rev. Daniel McIvor of Fort William, for instance, voiced the conscience of the House on April 12 in these words:

"I ask myself how often and how long is this sort of thing to go on? I think of the debates that have taken up the time of this House, debates on fuel, debates on labor, debates on a secret ballot, debates on matters. I think of the debate on the battle off the coast of Gaspe between corvettes and a submarine that never was there. I think of these things and then ask, as a good many other hon. members must be asking, how certain members of this House the right to tax the patience of other hon. members and the country. I think we should get on with the business of this house. Let us, in the language of the street, cut out the bunk and work."

Parliamentary usage, of course, prohibited Mr. McIvor from mentioning the name of certain people who have been wasting time. Take the record of the past three weeks.

The budget debate ended on March 25. The first real effort to get into committee on supply came on March 29. P. E. Wright (C.C.F., Rosetown-Biggar) for a revision of grain marketing policy. This was out of order, but it started a two-day debate. T. C. Douglas (C.C.F., Weyburn) moved for the abolition of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. This amendment was in order, and was defeated after a day's debate, but not until E. E. Perley (Prog. Con., Qu'Appelle) tried to put in a new amendment requiring the Wheat Board to handle coarse grains as well as wheat. These things, of course, are matters of public interest, but whether they should take precedence over the war measures previously mentioned, might be disputed in any case. No record exists of an election in Saskatchewan.

On March 31 the House went into committee on supply to consider not the 1943 war appropriation, but the supplementary accounts for 1942. On April 1, the House was still talking about an item of expense for the royal mint, though the visit of Anthony Eden had delayed things somewhat. Of course, the House should have had all 1942 accounts passed by March 31, which is the fiscal year ends, but what are deadlines to a democratic parliament?

Starting a fresh week, the government tried to get the House to go into committee on ways and means to approve budget resolutions—that is, the motions dealing with new taxes and tax changes. Gordon Grisdwell (C.C.F. Rosetown-Biggar) took this occasion to raise the question whether, as it was so long since the session had started, the government should not make statements to bring the members up to date on the war? But the House made real progress that day, after a slow start.

The next day, on going into committee, Angus MacInnis (C.C.F., Vancouver East) precipitated a discussion of labor relations and the remarks of Mr. Justice Mc-Tague. There are 40 pages of this debate on the record, and for the same day three pages on ways and means. The next day, Norman Jaques (S.C. Wetaskiwin) raised the question whether talk of a League of Nations is seditious, especially if such talk comes from a citizen like B. K. Sandwell, editor of Saturday Night. It was no accident, in view of the amount of time he spends on his feet engaged in talking, that when a blackout test hit the House a few nights later, it was J. F. Poulin (Lib., Temiscouata) who was left in the dark.

The spring weather, like Parliament has been slow in Ottawa, so when another fresh week started on April 12, the running interference on House business was worse. The blackout had to be explained to Mr. Poulin. R. B. Hanson (Prog. Cons., York-Sunbury) raised points about the income tax. J. Sasseville Roy (Ind., Gaspe) moved that it was expedient to remove discontent caused by frozen wages, but he was out of order.

The next day being Tuesday, many of the Ontario members, especially those from Toronto, were back from their customary long week-end at home which invariably includes an extra day on Mondays. T. L. Church (Prog. Cons., Broadview-Toronto) asked for a debate on political policy in North Africa. (Fortunately, no one was prepared to take him up on it.)

These are some of the reasons why the session Parliament has been bogged down and is behind schedule.

Inexplicable Stand

BY EMILE-CHARLES HAMEL

The American people, whom we admire and like, are at times astonished at certain declarations made by official personages, and the American press, none more alive and free in the world, expresses its astonishment in loud terms and is not backward in speaking its mind to some of these officials.

No doubt this intervention by General Eisenhower in French affairs will surprise many of his compatriots. What cannot be overlooked is the manner in which the General has requested General de Gaulle not to leave Africa. He has surprised and troubled the minds not only of Frenchmen but the representatives of those European nations who are engaged on our side in the fight for democracy and who are whole-heartedly with those who maintain French resistance.

The British, who agreed to the choice of Eisenhower over the heads of Alexander and Montgomery, have accepted also the decision of this same Eisenhower to delay the Giroud-de Gaulle interview. We can see here the same fine time being. But, the astonishing thing is that, it was not Giraud who begged his colleague de Gaulle to put off the meeting he himself had invited him to attend. Why was it an ally, however friendly, who, informs a Frenchman, de Gaulle, that another Frenchman, Giraud, cannot see him now?

The English as they have done in respect of the fighting, provide equally in political conduct an example which their American friends would do well to follow. We have in mind French sovereignty restored in Syria and in Madagascar, thanks to British troops. The British, while assuring for themselves vitally important strategic positions have found ways and means of giving the French people striking proofs of friendship and esteem; and since, have avoided with utmost care any word or deed that might impair French sovereignty. May the Americans find it worth while to imitate this conduct.

Nailing an Abominable Lie

BY CAPTAIN JOHN HUNDEVAD
In THE LEGIONARY

"And the Princess Pats were—every man jack of them—ex-convicts."

This preposterous, utterly fantastic and slanderous statement about the officers and men of the famous Canadian regiment of the First Great War has actually been printed in black and white by a United States publication which has just been drawn to our attention.

The publication in question is not, as one might have supposed, one of the many "pulp" magazines from across the border which specialize in lurid crime stories, but the eminently respectable "Journal of Criminal Psychopathology," which is published by the Medical Journal Press of Monticello, N.Y., and is edited by Dr. V. C. Branham of Woodbourne, N.Y.

The article containing the amazing sentence quoted was published in the January, 1943, issue under the heading "The Prisoner in War time," and the writer is Lieut.-Commander Martin Sukov, M.D., Medical Corps, U.S. Naval Reserve. Previously, a footnote states, it had been read as a paper before the Chicago Academy of Criminology—on October 9, 1942.

Used in support of a proposal to bolster the manpower of United States fighting forces by utilizing the country's jail population, Lieut.-Commander Sukov's reference to the Princess Patricia's Canadian Infantry reads:

"On a certain day in June, 1918, there appeared something new under the sun. For on that day the Canadian regiment known as the Princess Pats went into action at Belleau Wood and helped, at the cost of almost complete annihilation, to turn the German thrust at Paris into an Allied victory. The Princess Pats, both as a regiment and individuals, were the most frequently decorated regiment in the First World War. And the Princess Pats were—every man jack of them —ex-convicts.

"The record of the Princess Pat regiment is a sufficient reason to cause us to think and think hard, about the possibility of utilizing in this war the frozen manpower making up the penal population of the United States."

A more completely inaccurate statement could hardly be imagined. There is, in fact, not a single true word in it.

First, the Princess Pats were never in action at Belleau Wood in June, 1918, or at any other time. The author may be thinking of Bellewaarde Ridge — much farther north—but there in one day's fierce fighting the Patricia's suffered 392 casualties. But that happened more than three years earlier, on May 8, 1915.

Second, the Princess Patricia's, in spite of the three D.S.O.'s, 11 D.S.O.'s, 55 M.C.'s, 39 D.C.M.'s and 160 M.M.'s which testify to the supreme valor of its officers, non-c's and men, was not the most decorated regiment in the First Great War. Anyway, the number of medals and decorations won is by no means an accurate measure of a unit's bravery or achievements.

Third, and infinitely more important, Lt. Commander Sukov's statement that the Princess Pats were ex-convicts—"every man jack of them"—is an abominable lie, a malicious, libellous character defamation of as fine a body of men as ever wore the King's uniform. Of the 5,086 men of all ranks who passed through the battalion during its four and a half years of service—including 1,000 "originals" who were almost entirely British Army veterans resident in Canada, and 1,373 who came from Canadian universities—there is no record in the official files of the Defence Department at Ottawa of even one man having an ex-convict.

What a shame such a falsehood should be circulated at a time such as this. What a pity that an officer of our gallant neighbor and ally's navy should, however unwittingly, be the careless conveyor of such fabrication.

Captain Jevons (introducing an acquaintance to his old aunt): "This is my old friend Jones. He lives on the Canary Islands."

"How interesting," murmured old auntie, and gathering all her wits, she added: "Then, of course, you sing."

Major And Minor Notes

By John Oliver

IN THE MIDST of a second world war, thoughts of Christian people the world over, at this week-end, are focussed on Easter and all that it stands for. Throughout Lent and more especially in the last week, music has taken a prominent role in the commemorative celebrations.

JOHN OLIVER

There have been and will be tomorrow, special services, featuring Stainer's ever-popular cantata, The Crucifixion; Maunder's Olivet to Calvary; Moore's The Darkest Hour; extracts from Handel's Messiah, and other widely-known and popular works. In the general observance of the occasion, carols play a prominent part. While in the popular mind, carols are more generally applicable to Christmas, there are many which are indissolubly associated with Easter and form an integral part of the music of the great festival of the Resurrection.

As Christmas carols are built on a celebration of the ancients, those of Easter have the same Pagan origin. While the two species are similar in musical treatment, namely, built on dance rhythms, they differ widely in sentiment, as one records the Nativity, and the other the Resurrection of Christ. In the secular field, the Christmas carols are primarily concerned with feasting and jollity, whereas those of Easter mainly are "rejoicings in nature's rebirth" and odes to spring. Ancient races always were sincere and our ancestors who believed that the sun was newborn each morning, and that after riding across the world it lay buried at night, naturally, would welcome the spring.

In bleak northern climes, these sun-worshippers greatly feared the long months of partial, and days of total darkness, so when the days began to lengthen they had a great festival called "Hoch-tide" or "Turning Tide" that was celebrated with dancing, and singing odes to their god, the Sun. Each nation and tribe had a similar festival at the beginning of spring.

Early Christians used these spring songs, with which they were familiar, in building those of their new belief, as Easter, their greatest festival of the year, coincided with the Feast of Spring of the Pagans. Song and music always have been given reverence, not only by the Hebrews but by all nationalities, and early Greeks, from 1000 to 400 B.C. even thought it to be of superhuman origin. At a much later date, the Romans also rated music very highly, in their worship. It is recorded that, at a religious celebration in Rome, during the reign of Julius Caesar (100-44 B.C.) 12,000 singers and musicians participated.

In Christian Rome song always formed an important part of services, and specially at Easter. After the silence of the Lenten season, the use of minor chants during Holy Week, at midnight on Easter Eve during the reading of a certain passage of scripture in the Sistine Chapel, the bells of St. Peter's joined by all the bells of the city ring jubilantly, the guns of the Castle Saint Angelo are fired and people crowd in and around the churches to join in the singing of the Gloria and Alleluia, Praise Ye the Lord. It is presumed this custom will remain in spite of the changes resulting from Italy's Axis partnership.

This famous Sistine Chapel is closely associated with song, having been instituted by Pope Sylvester, who in 314 A.D. established singing schools in Rome for boys and men. The Greek Church, in all parts of the world, has adorned music and ritual at all services, but there is special music for Easter Day when the theme is Alleluia, that is sung many times in various modes, by the unaccompanied choir, first by the Decani, who are joined singing music in the front part of the altar, then echoed by the Cantori, or singers on the left, after which it is again repeated by the Decani, and then by the whole choir. On Easter Eve at the Cathedral of Saint Sophia at Istanbul —formerly Constantinople—that is in darkness except for one window, many thousands of worshippers bearing lighted candles and led by the Patriarch, march around the building, chanting.

At midnight, the Patriarch strikes the west door with his foot; the Decani around him loudly chant, Lift Up Your Heads, O Ye Gates, and the King of Glory Shall Come In." The Cantori, inside the church, answer, "Who Is the King of Glory?"

The Decani again chant "The Lord of Hosts; He Is the King of Glory." Immediately the doors swing open. Suddenly the church blazes with lights, and the people crowd in and around the church, listening to the joyful music, and carrying eggs, and other foods from which they have abstained during Lent, and now have brought to be blessed. Eggs, symbolizing rebirth, always have played an important part in spring celebrations as well as in song, the egg ceremonial dance being the oldest known dance. Each communicant greets the other with "Christ is Risen." This brings the response "He is Indeed Risen," accompanied by a kiss among the high and low.

Pope Gregory, about 500 A.D. gave the world a dignified mode of church music that clearly evinces the sonorous solemnity of Hebrew psalmody and Druidic chant. Among Easter hymns in Gregorian mode, the most perfect specimens are those translated from the Latin, such as Alleluia, the Strife is O'er, with music by Palestrina (1526-1594); The Lamb's High Banquet, set to a 7th century Sarum plain song; Alleluia, O Sons and Daughters, Let Us Sing, a 11th century French melody.

Other classical favorites include Christ the Lord is Risen Again, by Johann Rosenbium; Christ the Lord is Risen Today by Charles Wesley, sung to Lyrica Davidica, and Hail the Festal Day, by the Rev. James Baden-Powell. Through the years one may find many splendid Easter hymns have been written by such masters as Sir Henry Smart, Sir George Elvey, Sir Arthur Sullivan, Martin Luther, and other composers of every country, each displaying his individuality in the product of his inspiration.

Among those written in true carol or dance form, is Rejoice, Today Earth Tells Around with Holy Veneration. The word "paschal" frequently occurring in Easter hymns, is from pascha, the Jewish passover. Most countries use variants of this word for Easter. To the French it is paque; to the Italians pasqua; Dutch, paasdag; Swedish and Norwegians paaske, and Welsh pasg. The Germans call it ostern from the old Saxon word oster, meaning rising. Only England-speaking people call it Easter so named after the old Pagan goddess of the Saxons, Spring or Estre.

Of all beautiful songs, none is more appealing than Handel's I Know That My Redeemer Liveth. Also, among Easter choral music is immortal and majestic Hallelujah Chorus from The Messiah, stands unsurpassed. In the Passions and other Easter music of Bach, a fine effect is gained from the fact that for the character of Jesus the words always are accompanied by strings in contrast to the other recitatives, accompanied by the clavichord.

* * *

Among the many Easter hymns in true coral form are Easter Flowers Are Blooming Bright, written in lilting six-eight rhythm; the In the Star of Morning, Rising in the Sky, in twelve-eight time, and the delightful children's carol, Sweetly the Birds Are Singing. Secular Easter carols, although always spring songs, vary in different countries according to the temperament of the people. In the Tyrol men with hats decorated with flowers and ribbons go from house to house during the Easter season serenading with bright, gay songs, telling spring and love. A vivid contrast is displayed by the Welsh who also serenade but with a heavier type of song that is always in four-part harmony. Each is beautiful in its own character. France has a greater collection of Easter songs than any other country.

A typical English Easter carol is the Pace-Egging Song, sung to a traditional tune from the west part of England. In medieval times fivolity entered even the churches. In a cathedral of France a solemn game of ball was played by bishops, with the congregation as onlookers. In the present day only the sublime remains of early celebrations and music. This thought has been happily expressed by Phillips Brooks in his Easter Flowers:

"O risen Christ: O Easter flowers!
That boy of yours
Want and Freedom from Fear . . . the fight to win for your children and grandchildren the kind of a world they deserve. Do your part. End luxury buying; curtail on necessities. Lend your money for Freedom. Lend now and reap the reward tomorrow!

John Barbirolli, former conductor of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, has been appointed permanent conductor of the Halle Orchestra of Manchester, England. His duties will begin July 1 as the sixth permanent conductor that the second oldest English orchestra has had since its foundation in 1857. Mr. Barbirolli's appointment coincides with a reconstruction of the orchestra on a year-'round basis, which is being made despite the fact that its concert hall is in ruins and many parts of the city have suffered severely from Nazi air raids. With private resources only, the orchestra plans to start an undertaking involving 200 concerts annually in Manchester and the north of England and will guarantee a fifty-two week contract to its musicians. Mr. Barbirolli will conduct the majority of the concerts and the engagement of possible guest or assistant conductors will be in his hands.

Easter—Its Meaning

By William M. Runyan

At hand again is Easter morning!
What will it mean to you?
Only new raiment for self-adorning
To be admired by a few?
New fervor, perhaps, in joyful singing,
As the masses join in the songs?
Or, can you say, "My life I am bringing
To Him to Whom it belongs"?

Not far away is Easter morning,
Its sun so soon will shine,
And may it mean a glorious dawning
In your heart, and in mine;
A radiant hope in life's vast sorrow,
A hymn midst bursting bombs,
A trumpet call toward that tomorrow
Where grow heaven's fronded palms.

Hail, then, with joy the morn's returning
That speaks of life to be.
"Because I live"—twas Jesus speaking—
"Ye, too shall live," said He.
He lives! He lives! The tomb forsaking,
A Conqueror, He arose
To banish on that Easter morning
Our fears, our tears, our woes.

TODAY'S MESSAGE

By REVEREND DANIEL YOUNG, B.A.
Minister, First Baptist Church

"Easter Fashions"

"I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day . . ."
—Rev. 1:10.

EVERY preacher thanks God for the GREAT THINGS of the faith, and he recognizes the importance of the special days on the Christian Calendar. He feels he must take advantage of these opportunities to present to the people great truths of the Christian Gospel on certain days set aside for this purpose such as Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter. I say every preacher is profoundly thankful for these special days, and yet, I suppose it is true to say that few preachers come to these days without a feeling of deepest concern — they have not thought of these days in the Church in terms of popular success which impresses most people.

Tomorrow is Easter Sunday — I might say many of the things that a preacher is expected to say about that day, but I am not in the mood to do that in this brief message. All I wish to do is to point to one of the dangers of Easter. This great Christian festival is in danger of being a fashionable religious observance. No preacher will have to beg for a congregation tomorrow; everybody will be there, but he will not be tempted to construe their presence either as an indication of their convictions about the Christian message, or their devotion and loyalty to the cause of Christ. It will be just as fashionable for many to go to Church tomorrow as it is for them to go to theatres to stay away. It will be just as popular to carry a Bible or a hymn-book as it is to wear new spring clothes.

I am always uneasy about religion when it becomes popular or fashionable—I don't consider the faiths of Christ or His way of life to be that at all. And we shall never do anything for people by trying to make it like that. Listen to these words of Dr. A. E. Whitham: "I am not impressed by a millionaire, a society lady, a novelist, a banker or a scientist, who pronounces on my faith merely in the name of their success in this or that region . . . I would rather take the word of an old body, a saint, who knows little or nothing of finance, science or society, against a race of worldlings." Too often attempts have been made to impress people with the fact that the Christian religion is fashionable, while everybody knows that it is not.

It will be true again that many preachers will ascend the pulpit steps on the Easter Day with a deep sense of gratitude for the spiritual truth to be proclaimed, and also burdened with anxiety lest the day should pass having been little more than a fashionable celebration.

This is the confession of a minister.

IT'S BABY WEEK

APRIL 24, MAY 1

Spring Turns Attention Needed Baby Requirements For Health And Recreation

Spring and babies go together. Both are forever new and forever lovingly surprising. In the spring, babies have their innings after a winter of imprisonment in the stuffy indoors.

But spring brings new problems to mothers. The youngsters must take advantage of the fresh air and sunshine, but ways and means must be found to keep the little ones occupied in front yards and avoid the danger of straying away from the home lot.

City department stores can solve these problems. There are railed pens, light and strong, that can be easily moved from room to room and to the garden or front lawn on bright afternoons.

Then there are the latest designs in high chairs, well cushioned and safe in every respect.

Place a baby in a high chair, give him an old tin tray and a spoon to beat it with, and he'll be happy for hours on end. He will love the noise and will crow with delight and the sense of power as he beats. If such is too trying on the adult temper indoors, the child might be placed in one of the handy outdoor swings that a furniture store is showing. Made of canvass, these many be hung on the porch, and there the child may enjoy the rhythmic motion, and watch his friend the dog as he barks at pussy in the yard next door.

One must not forget the toys, dolls, blocks and soft cuddy rabbits that look as though they marched right out of Fairyland.

The new and decidedly novel "baby guard" high chairs as featured by one leading furniture store is one of the smartest space saving pieces of furniture ever to grace the Lilliputian world. This high chair performs a number of duties, being convertible into a commode chair, bathing table and ordinary small table.

MAKES IT EASIER

With the use of this, the mother can perform duties of feeding and bathing the baby easily, without moving him from room to room, and at the same time convert the high chair and bath into a convenient household table in a jiffy.

On the same lines, is the combination high chair, walker and play pen, that is being shown by still another furniture company. This is featured in pink, ivory or natural, and is an ideal space saver.

FOR WARTIME

Children's and baby's accessories, as well as everything else, have been attuned to war-time simplicity, but where there are shortages, clever new substitutes have marched in to take their place.

Instead of the old-fashioned rubber panties, that were dreadfully hot anyway, and irritated the baby's legs—new, cooler panties of oiled-silk have been introduced. Perfect for a holiday or motoring trip, are the Kleinartz pad-panty, designed with disposable diapers.

Another novelty, new on the market and ideal for a holiday trip, is a canvas car seat. Designed on similar lines to the aforementioned swing, these can be fastened without harm to the back of the car seat, and the child can look out of the window to watch the passing country, without fear of bumps or falls.

POPULAR SHADE

There is now showing the new popular "Shampoo Shade," that is made of oiled silk. It is like a wide-brimmed, crownless hat, and slips over the child's head, in order that hair may be washed and soap and water kept out of young eyes.

"Plankies," is the came give to the latest and most scientific type of rattle. These are made of 10-12 brightly colored composition discs on a rust-proof chain. They can be chewed without fear of losing color and be thoroughly sterilized in boiling hot water, with no ill-effect. Nothing will keep a young child more happy and jolly than a multi-colored rattle, and this one more than fills the bill at a ridiculously inexpensive price.

To the expectant mother, whose days are filled with feverish hunts for just the right kind of layette for her coming baby, one department store offers complete layette suggestions. Displayed on a table are everything required by the new-born child, from the new pyrex feeding bottles with the sanitary screw-on nipples, to sheets, blankets and dainty embroidered christening gowns.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

WITH the Victoria Army-Ottawa Commando series not yet settled and this year's Stanley cup battles still decidedly verdant in the memories of fans, it may seem a far cry back to 1925, for a lot of hockey has been played and much of it forgotten during the intervening 18 years.

However, a subscriber out in Vancouver has written in asking for particulars of the lineup of the Edmonton Eskimos (including christian names too, if you please) for the 1924-25 season. The ultimate result has been a nice turn of research which, it must be confessed, became more interesting the deeper it was pursued.

It may be recalled that the Western Canada Hockey League was functioning at the time as a six-club circuit, consisting of Edmonton, Calgary, Saskatoon, Regina, Vancouver and Victoria. And by the way, that was the year Victoria Cougars won the Stanley cup and now Victoria after a lapse of 18 seasons is once more back in the Canadian hockey spotlight.

SIMPSON, KEATS AND CO.

ESKIMOS of the 1924-25 season started out with Herb Stuart and Bill Tobin in goal. Stuart had played the previous year with Brandon and oh, yes, the other gentleman is the same Bill Tobin now with Chicago Black Hawks. Early in February 1925, Heck Fowler was brought in to attend to the goaling duties.

Joe Simpson and Bob Trapp constituted the first line defence and of course Duke Keats was at centre, being flanked at the start by Joe McCormick (at right) and Archie "Red" Briden. Also included on the roster were Barney Stanley, Johnny Shepard, Crutchy Morrison, Roy Rickey and Billy Holmes.

And now for the sad part—Calgary beat Edmonton 4-3 in the latter's final game which left the Eskimos in fourth place with 29 points. Just out of the playoffs. Barney Stanley scored two of the Eskimos' three goals that night, "Red" Briden getting the other. Oliver accounted for a pair of Calgary's markers, the others going to Crawford and Gardiner.

VICTORIA BEATS CANADIENS

CALGARY wound up in first place during the regular league schedule and accordingly secured the bye into the final playoff. Victoria ousted Saskatoon in the semi-final and later eliminated Calgary in a home and home series, the scores being 3-1 and 2-0.

The Cougars then went on to wrest the Stanley cup from the Montreal Canadiens in a best-of-five series, 5-2, 3-1, 2-4, 6-1. It was noted in the press report of the last game that "Lester Patrick changed the Victoria forwards every five minutes, while the Canadiens went the entire route without a substitution."

On Victoria's lineup were Holmes, Loughlin, Fraser, Halderson, Meeking, Frederickson, Hart, Foyston, Walker and Anderson. The Canadiens at the time boasted some of the greatest names in hockey annals. Vezina was in goal, Sprague Cleghorn and Billy Coutu on defence with Howie Morenz at centre, Bob Boucher on right wing and Aurel Joliat, Martha, Johnny Metz (formerly of Edmonton), Odie Cleghorn and Headley rounded out the imposing array of talent.

CLEAN SWEEP FOR WEST

LINEUPS of the four clubs in the Western Canada Hockey League not given above were as follows:

Calgary—Winkler, Dutton, Gardiner, Sparrow, Oliver, Crawford, Wilson, MacFarlane, Anderson, Oatman, Benson.

Saskatoon—Hainsworth, Reise, Cameron, Lalonde, W. Cook, Bun Cook, Laurie Scott, Stevens, Bourgault, Dennenny.

Vancouver—Lehman and Reid, Duncan, Moran, Bostrum, Matte, Mackay, Arbour, F. Boucher, Reinikka, B. Boucher.

Regina — McCusker, Traub, Newell, Shore, Irvin, Hay, Dutkowski, McVeigh, Gagne.

And just to complete the survey for that year, Port Arthur won the Allan cup in the spring of 1925 from Toronto Varsity in two straight games, 4-0 and 3-2 and Regina Pats took the Memorial trophy, the eastern juniors finalists being Aura Lee—to make a clean sweep for the west.

2 Oshawa Stars May Not Play in Tonight's Game

TORONTO, April 24—(CP)—Injuries may force the loss of two starry Oshawa players when they meet Winnipeg Rangers here tonight in the fourth game of their best-of-seven series for the Memorial Cup and the Canadian junior hockey title, Coach Charlie Conacher of the Oshawa Generals said Friday night.

The two are Frank Bennett, ace defenceman, and Chuck Scherza, speedy winger, both bothered by knee ailments. They were important factors in the two victories Oshawa has gained in the series.

"Whether they play is entirely up to themselves," Conacher said. He added he felt no reason to be overly optimistic about his club's chances, though "we look for a great battle, that's for sure."

Bob Kinnear, Winnipeg coach expressed confidence his team could deadlock the series and said the western youngsters intend to throw the game wide open from the first.

"That's the way we play our best hockey. On Monday we tried to play it cosy, but it didn't work. We've got to keep skating and shooting and hope our luck is a little better," said one of the Winnipeg players.

Meanwhile, officials said Maple Leaf Garden was sold out yesterday morning for the game and there was a good chance a new junior attendance record would be established.

New Marathon Game Record Set For International League

Toronto, Baltimore Play 21-Inning Tie

Leaf Chucker Pitches for 18 Innings

BALTIMORE, April 24.—(AP)—In the longest game on record in the International Baseball League's 41-year history, Baltimore Orioles and Toronto Maple Leafs battled to a 2-2 tie in 21 innings Friday before the contest was called on account of darkness.

Records show that Buffalo defeated Toronto 3-2 in 20 innings in 1921, and that Jersey City and Toronto went 20 innings to a scoreless tie in 1913. Baltimore and Montreal played a 4-4 tie in 18 innings in 1911.

Baltimore used four pitchers, while Dick Conger of Toronto went 18 innings, or two regular games, before being relieved by Rod Hopper.

Ed Kileman, Baltimore's starting pitcher, made a wild pitch in the first half of the eighth inning, resulting in the Toronto run that knotted the score.

Al Rubeling, Leaf third baseman, led off the 15th with a triple, but was stranded.

Baltimore scored twice in the fourth. Toronto's first run came in the seventh.

NEWARK ROOKIE BEATS ROCHESTER

NEWARK, N.J., April 24—(AP)—Long Tom Anaiice, making his International League debut, rationed Rochester Red Wings to five hits here Friday while his Newark teammates collected 10 to romp to their second straight victory by a 5-1 score.

Anaiice, a southpaw who served previously with Oakland in the Pacific Coast League and Binghampton, held the Red Birds to only one hit in the first 5 2-3 innings and lost his chance for a shut out in the sixth because of wildness. Two passes and a single by Joe Mack drove in Rochester's tally. In all, Anaiice dished up seven walks and struck out five. He had the support of three double plays reeled off in the first four frames.

To Be Played at Calgary

Commandos Expect to End Allan Cup Final Tonight

CALGARY, April 24.—(CP)—Hockey fever is intense in this city with Ottawa Commandos and Victoria Army being scheduled to stage the third game of the 1942-43 Allan cup finals here tonight. Advance bookings were so brisk that when ticket holders were given their first chance of picking up reservations this morning the standing room only sign was put up within three hours.

Due to recent fire regulations approximately 480 balcony seats at the arena will not be sold and this limits the capacity to around 5,300 persons.

Victoria Army players arrived in the city Friday and during the afternoon indulged in what their manager Lt. Bud Ray stated was the most gruelling workout of the entire winter. High strung, as they naturally are following 4-2 and 6-4 setbacks at Winnipeg and Regina respectively, the western champions did an unusual amount of body checking and carried their sticks high and this resulted in ample spills for the players and an abundance of thrills for the railbirds. Elmer Kreller came out of the practice with a cut forehead, due to a crack by Pinky Melnyk.

Lt. Ray states that with the odd break or two his club could easily have come to Calgary with two wins instead of two losses and the worst they deserved was an even break. He predicted that the Patton cup holders will show to better advantage on the larger ice surface here. He does not contemplate any change to the personnel of his lineup.

Reports originating from Regina that Alex Smith, coach of the Commandos had criticized the officials caused Lt. Ray to laugh. "Commandos won two games so far and they holler," he said. "We lost two and offer no alibis. The referees have been particularly good and I only hope they maintain their form."

For fear that the high altitude here might affect them, Commandos remained over in Regina and were not due to arrive until this morning. They had a light skate shortly after booking in at the hotel.

Army Life Helps Out Max Baer

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24—(AP)—Army life is doing wonders for Private Max Baer.

At 34, the former heavyweight champion feels so invigorated he is talking of a future ring comeback and mentioning a fight with Joe Louis in the same breath.

"What do you think?" Pie, Baer asked. Before we could ponder the idea a full two seconds he added, "Maybe I'd better do the comeback in the movies, later on."

Incidentally, he was on the verge of signing an attractive Hollywood contract when he chose to become an inductee in the United States Army.

Army Life Helps Out Max Baer

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24—(AP)—Army life is doing wonders for Private Max Baer.

At 34, the former heavyweight champion feels so invigorated he is talking of a future ring comeback and mentioning a fight with Joe Louis in the same breath.

"What do you think?" Pie, Baer asked. Before we could ponder the idea a full two seconds he added, "Maybe I'd better do the comeback in the movies, later on."

Incidentally, he was on the verge of signing an attractive Hollywood contract when he chose to become an inductee in the United States Army.

Athletics Shut Out Boston Red Sox 5-0

PHILADELPHIA, April 24. — (AP) — Philadelphia Athletics, with Russ Christopher and Luman Harris combining to hurl shut-out ball, chalked up their first victory of the youthful 1943 baseball season Friday by whipping Boston Red Sox 5-0 in the only game played in the major leagues.

Christopher, charged with the A's first defeat against Washington Senators last Tuesday, yielded all six hits cracked out by the Sox before weakening in the eighth. With one out, he passed Ulysses Lupien and rookie outfielder Ford Garrison.

Connie Mack promptly waved him to the showers and called on Luman Harris to squelch the rally. Harris, who started the season's inaugural, did just that, holding the Sox hitless in the last 1 2-3 innings.

The Athletics jumped on Joe Dobson for eight of their nine hits and four of their runs. The other tally was scored at the expense of Lou Lucier, rookie right-hander up from Louisville.

Bobby Doerr did the only real thumping for the sox. He drove out two doubles, one in the first with two out and the other in the third with Pete Fox astride first base. Fox tried to score but was nipped at the plate.

Illinois Racing Starts Today

CHICAGO, April 21 — (AP) — Sportsman's Park, half-mile oval on Chicago's west side, dressed up Friday for the official start of the 1943 Illinois racing season. The first six days of the 19-day meeting starting today have been designated "charity week" with local organizations sharing in all proceeds.

As soon as the lists emerge from the street cars and elevated trains several 50-passenger carry-alls drawn by Belgian horses will be waiting to carry them the 11 blocks to the track.

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

By CHARLES EDWARDS

TORONTO, April 24—(CP)—National Hockey League officials speak glibly of plugging their teams with 17-year-old juniors next season. That may not be as easy as it sounds. For instance, Fort William Hurricane Rangers, Thunder Bay junior champions the past two seasons, have decided they can not operate next year because so many youngsters are entering the services. The Fort William action may be the tip-off. When a club as strong as Hurricane Rangers decides to fold, it's certain junior players are really becoming scarce.

Incidentally:

A good suggestion came out of the banquet honoring the 1942-43 Fort William juniors. Fort William is in dire need of a modern rink and it is hoped to build one as a post-war reconstruction measure. Interested citizens would be asked to contribute one war savings certificate apiece . . . That's an idea of potential value to other cities where rinks are needed.

While eastern golfers champ at the bit, waiting for the weatherman to give them a break, they're already scoring holes-in-one on the cold, bleak prairies where, some will tell you, they have only eight days of summer—Dominion Day and exhibition week. Two aces have been shot at Edmonton, one by H. H. Henker of Calgary on the Municipal course, the other by Norman Miller at Rupert course. . .

Round and About:

The Ontario Amateur Softball Association has raised $100,000 in the past three years for war and civilian charities and, in addition, donated $2,000 of softball equipment to military camps. An estimated 15,000 Ontario softball players have enlisted.

Major Leagues Will Get New, Livelier Ball

NEW YORK, April 24—(AP)—The ballers and club owners can stop worrying, for there's going to be a new and livelier baseball in the major leagues.

Answering widespread objections of baseball men that the new ball was deader than the one appeared by the major leagues' committee in December, Lou Coleman, vice-president of A. G. Spalding and Brothers, the manufacturer, admitted Friday that the baseballs sent out for the opening of the season did not measure up to standard.

But, in a prepared statement issued from the office of President Ford Frick of the National League, Coleman said the fault had been discovered and that the ballers would have a better ball at which to swing in about two weeks.

Coleman explained as follows: "In the manufacture of baseballs a layer of rubber cement is applied between layers of wool. Under warm conditions this cement is made from reprocessed rubber. The cement used on the baseballs turned out by the factory in recent shipments has proved of inferior quality. Instead of providing resilience the cement hardened to a point where the wool was affected. This deadened the ball.

To correct the fault, Coleman said a new type of cement has been tested and accepted.

Count Fleet Has First Workout at Churchill Downs

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 24—(AP)—Derbyville had its first look at Count Fleet in action Friday and climbed right on the bandwagon. The way he did his bit convinced the neighbors that he has all the answers for the Kentucky Derby May 1 and maybe a few extra for the Preakness and Belmont after that.

He stepped out on a muddy Churchill Downs track and churned along for three-eighths of a mile in a snappy 38 3-5 seconds.

What's more important, his cut left hind foot is healing rapidly. The Count will follow up yesterday morning's short trip with a longer run today, probably a mile or more.

His splash Friday was the big number of a day that saw such other Derby doings as the arrival from New York of Slide Rule and Twosies, thereby completing the Derby field; a couple of fair mile workouts by Gold Shower and Modest Lad, and the possible withdrawal of Seven Hearts from the list of probable starters.

Seven Hearts is owned by J. Graham Brown, the Louisville hotel-proprietor. He has been troubled for a long time with a split in his foot.

It looks as if 11 others are going to race against the favored Count May 1st.

NEW YORK, April 24.—The man that Fritzie Zivic begins work on a Pennsylvania farm next week to aid the war effort leaves us flabbergasted and faint.

We don't know whether a sports columnist or a fifth columnist inspired this pastoral perambulation by the Pittsburgh pugilist, but we can assure agriculture secretary Claude R. Wickard that the farm never again will be the same.

This venture among the vegetables may prove particularly disastrous to the potato crop for example. Henry Armstrong and others equipped have changed their pugnacious faces in a hurry in the past. We never believed this. But if the change is sure, imagine what will happen to the eyes of the seed spuds.

NOT A FARMER

Like carrying coals to Newcastle, this trek to the truck farm seems a bit futile because Zivic merely will be shifting his cauliflowers to the countryside. Moreover, gregarious Fritzie—who sprouted from Pittsburgh's streets, was nurtured on smoke from the steel mills, and thrived in crowds—will be as much at home on a hacienda as a Newport bridge table or in a quartz mine. He is the only prominent pugilist we never have seen in a training camp. Our contact with the youngest of the fighting Zivics always have been in smoky downtown gymnasiums or in hotel rooms well populated with the fight mob.

As far as we know, Zivic's only conception of a furrow is a gash that one cuts in some pug's brow or cheek. If the farmer told him to go out and pick tomatoes, Fritzie would be in a quandry because along tin-ear terrace a "tomato" is either a dame or a nose to punch. . . . If the farmer said, "We'll bring in the lettuce and cabbage today," Fritzie probably would exclaim, "Payin' off, huh? What's my cut?"

Imagine sending the Pittsburgh pugilist out to the barn to milk a cow and hearing him remark "That bag's hung a bit low, but I think I can punch it all right. Trying to make a bob-and-weaver out of me, huh?"

If the farmer said, "Today we'll pull some weeds," Fritzie doubtless would gaze at him in perplexand suppose. Wow, you should see the [illegible] on creek. Be down tomorrow week. Where's the still?"

Around the stables, Zivic shouldn't have too much trouble with the horses, because he'll have his farm sheets with him. Among the poultry, he'll be at home because he's seen plenty of ducks" go into the tank, as well as hovens who were complete "turkeys", and palookas who laid plenty of eggs.

We imagine one of Fritzie's first steadfast duties will be to teach the union cows so that he can send stallions to one. Bunny Davis, whom he never has forgiven for blasting below the belt.

"Probation After Death" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon at all Christian Science churches on Sunday. The Golden Text is Psalms 49:15. One of the Scriptural citations is "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches. He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death" (Revelation 2:11). One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is "Death will occur on the next plane of existence as on this, until the spiritual understanding of Life is reached. Then, and not until them, will it be demonstrated that 'the second death hath no power'." (p. 77).

Back the attack with Victory Bonds that we may "Tighten our Grip on the Enemies of Freedom."

CANADA'S 4th VICTORY LOAN calls for a greater measure of sacrifice than we have yet experienced . . . the curbing of all expenditures right down to actual necessities! For in this way alone, can we provide the money for the successful prosecution of the war which means the "unconditional surrender" of the Axis and its Satellites.

BACK THE ATTACK

TODAY, as the war gets well into its fourth year, Canadians are again asked to lend their savings to their country.

This is a costly war. Each year, as our armed forces increase in might, and our output of machines and munitions of war continues to expand, our war costs are multiplied, too. This year, our country will require one billion dollars more to wage the battle of freedom than in 1942. This year, Canada must raise the staggering total of five and one-half billions of dollars.

Never in all history have Canadians faltered in the face of the enemy. Never has the price of freedom been too great a load to bear. And so, with unflinching courage and endurance, Canadians now will continue to put forth an increasing effort until their enemies lay down their arms in complete surrender.

This year, our armed forces will be ready to strike damaging blows against the enemy. Canadians must stand shoulder to shoulder behind the men who face the foe. Every man, woman and child must do his or her utmost. Make your dollars fighting dollars. Back the attack—buy VICTORY BONDS.

Technical Forces Seeking More Officer Material

Canadian Army Course First Year Engineering Commences Here Sept. 15

Dr. Robert Newton, president of the University of Alberta, on Saturday announced that the University of Alberta, in co-operation with the department of national defence, is offering a course to be known as Canadian Army Course in First Year Engineering to begin Sept. 15, to a class of 60 students to be selected from young men now in the army or who are enlisted before Aug. 1. The course will be almost exactly the same as that taken by civilian students in engineering and will qualify successful students for continuation with the regular university courses in engineering later when they return to civilian life.

The object of the course, as stated by the Department of National Defence, is to provide additional potential officers for the technical arms and services of the Canadian Army and is open to selected soldiers of the Active Army as well as to candidates from civilian life who have the necessary academic qualifications and who join the Active Army not later than the first of August, 1943.

The standard entrance requirements to first year engineering will be adhered to, provided however that during the war a student with high standing in mathematics and science may be excused one deficiency in a non-essential course such as foreign language.

THOSE ELIGIBLE

Only men who are in medical category "A" will be eligible. Soldiers now serving in the Active Army and who are considered to be potential officer material and possessing the necessary academic qualifications, will apply through their commanding officers to the university concerned.

The following conditions will apply in respect to the Army University course:

(a) Enlistments will be permitted from the ages of 17 years up to 20 years.

(b) The written consent of parents must be given in the case of all boys under 18.

(c) Until a boy reaches the age of seventeen and one-half years, he will receive boy's pay (70 cents a day) after which he will go on standard rates of pay beginning at $1.30 a day, which increases to $1.50 a day, depending on good conduct and proficiency.

Students attending the course will be accommodated in University residences, or other suitable accommodation, and will be under military supervision.

FREE TUITION

Each student will receive free tuition, textbooks, also free board, lodging, medical and dental attention, in addition to his pay.

Applications from civilians must be made on forms obtainable from the university registrar. High school students who are presently preparing for matriculation examinations should make early application. Selections from all applicants will be made by the university as soon as the matriculation examination results become available in July. After that the army will make its selection from this university list and complete the arrangements and those found acceptable will be enlisted in the active army.

Fred Baker, one of the first members of the McCauley Concert Group, was named chairman of the organization at a recent meeting. Assisting him will be H. S. Reynolds, master of ceremonies; Mrs. J. Hodgkinson, treasurer; and Mrs. K. Bell, secretary.

Contributing artists present were Zella McDonald, Norma Johnson, Connie Davidson, Carrie Zureh, Minnie Foster, Lillian Foster, Dick Pollard, Fred Baker, Frank Adamson and W. Passmore.

J. J. Hodgkinson, organizer of the group, who is now living at Dawson Creek, submitted his resignation from any official capacity, due to his absence from the city. He was made a patron of the group, and Mrs. Hodgkinson a patroness.

Second anniversary of the group will be observed with a concert and dance at the Masonic Temple, May 7, when guest artists will assist the regular troupe. Sponsors of this concert will be the Canadian Order of Foresters.

Since inception of the group, some $5,000 has been deposited with the Royal Trust Company, for the Queen's Canadian Fund, and it is hoped this amount will grow as the group continues its activities.

11 Alberta Girls Among Graduates

A total of 25 members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps were graduated on Saturday as general duty clerks under the trade training plan of the Canadian Army which is under the direction of Capt. R. P. Fitzgerald, G.S.O. (3) in charge of trade training in Military District No. 13. Getting Around with Jack DeLong

We hear a lot about priorities these days and for most people the word is a shortened way of saying "pain in the neck." But some amusing things happen in the case of priorities. One of the funniest is reported at Los Angeles recently.

Rear Admiral R. A. Davison, assistant chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics, was a day late arriving for a meeting of the National Aircraft War Production Council. His excuse was that he was ousted from an airliner at Albuquerque, New Mexico, by an army sergeant.

The admiral admitted the plane boasted seating room for him he would have to give up his seat.

"But," protested the admiral, "I have a No. 3 priority."

"But the sergeant has a No. 2 priority," replied the charming hostess, pointing young Buck-Rogers. "He's a ferry pilot," she added. The sergeant got the seat. The admiral got the go-by.

But the really hilarious part of the episode has yet to be told.

Admiral Davison originally established the priority ratings himself. No. 1 is for the president of the United States; No. 2 for ferry pilots and No. 3 for government or service officials. Who said something about taking a dose of one's own medicine?

Shatter Aerial Bottleneck

GRANT McCONACHIE

H. HOLLICK-KENYON

Veterans of the northern aerial trails, General Manager Grant McConachie of C.P. Air Lines, and Air Commodore H. Hollick-Kenyon, operations supervisor, recently climbed back into pilot's seats and helped break a traffic bottleneck jam caused by increasing northern war project activity. General Manager McConachie proved himself a rival for superman for at least one day.

Grant McConachie and Able Aide Smash Northern Air Bottleneck

By JACK DeLONG

Grant McConachie, general manager for C.P. Air Lines, Ltd., Western Lines, has long been noted for possessing a goodly supply of that highly desirable, but rather mystifying commodity, known as pep. But even Grant's closest friends and associates of many years, were pop-eyed at the energy displayed by the youthful chief of the air lines, recently.

North war projects, a shortage of airplanes, a tremendous pile-up of work, extra trips, capacity loads and the like, were causing not simply bottlenecks—because these can be broken. It was more like the legendary Gordian knot that had the operations department of C.P. Air Lines in a bad tailspin.

WORKERS PRESSED

And in addition to the traffic problem there was the problem of human endurance. Main line crews were working limit hours and the situation was, to borrow currently popular military phrase, rapidly deteriorating.

Grant McConachie-buster had to be found, and found quickly. It is said, with considerable truth that men do not make history. History makes men.

At any rate General Manager Grant McConachie decided he'd have a try at busting the bottleneck, and for his trusty assistant he called on the veteran director of operations, Air Commodore Hollick-Kenyon.

Both donned pilot's uniforms and flew several trips. But here's what Pilot McConachie has done day by day. After a fairly brisk day in his office he took an hour's training in the Link trainer, just to brush up on aeronautics in general. He had a cheese sandwich on rye bread), and climbed aboard a plane for Whitehorse, some 1,100 miles to the northwest. Flying most of the night, he arrived at the Yukon air base at about 5 a.m. The plane was serviced. Grant had another sandwich, of Yukon grizzly bear meat this time, between two hunks of sourdough (bread). Then he climbed aboard and flew back to Edmonton, arriving there in the evening.

BEHIND IN "WORK"

When he got back to his offices in the airport he discovered he was away behind in his work. So he spent a few more hours at his desk, getting things straightened around.

Then, and only then, he went home. He was home, he was tired. There just wasn't a darned thing left to do.

The aerial bottleneck had been smashed.

Did Mr. McConachie sleep in next morning? Not Mr. McConachie. He was back at his desk, smiling, and serene, at 9 a.m. All members of the C.P. Air Lines staff have since taken up the study of vitamins, and a sample of Yukon grizzly meat has been sent to the department of bio-chemistry at the University of Alberta. It is believed the human race is on the eve of an epoch-shattering discovery in the field of nutrition.

A full report on Air Commodore Hollick-Kenyon's part in smashing the aerial bottleneck is now being prepared.

Around The Town

The Royal Canadian Sea Cadets will parade Tuesday and Friday, 19.30 hours, at the Naval Barracks.

Members of the Aircraft Repair Depot men's fastball team will work out at Diamond Park Sunday morning at 10.30 o'clock, and the girls' team at Kingsway Park at 11.45.

The body of C. E. Farnham, a United States woman who died at Fort St. John on Thursday, arrived in Edmonton by plane Friday. The body is being sent to Albert Lea, Minnesota, for burial. Connelly-McKinley, funeral directors, had charge of arrangements.

Farmers of Bremner and Ardrossan were busy Good Friday, threshing, cleaning up last years unthreshed crop. The farmers were helping each other, in the absence of hired help. Soil conditions do not yet permit general work on the land, although it is hoped this will start next week.

Power production at Edmonton's power plant during the period Jan. 1 to April 18 totalled 30,644,300 kilowatt hours compared with 26,059,700 for the same period last year, an increase of 4,593,500 kilowatt hours, according to a report filed Saturday by R. L. Wright, power superintendent, with the city commissioners.

Members of the North Alberta branch, Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists, will hear an address Monday night on Saskatchewan's rural assessment system, to be given by T. H. Freeman, director of rural assessment in Saskatchewan, will be delivered in the Garneau United Church hall, at 8 p.m. Members of the Alberta Land Inspectors' Association will attend the meeting.

"Pennies, please!" is the slogan of Edmonton Stagette club, as it appealed to citizens of Edmonton to hurry along contributions to the club's "penny parade." Objective of the parade is 100,000 pennies in five weeks, and this week, Miss M. H. Wotherspoon, convener of the campaign, reports 12,000 have been collected. The weekly objective is 20,000 pennies. Sixty penny boxes are located in downtown stores and cafes in Edmonton, and the money collected is to be used to help bombed-out children in Britain.

Two Edmonton men recently were graduated from the Armored Force School Tank department at Camp Borden, Ont. The men are Pte. Ernest S. Freeman, and Pte. James D. Wright. Pte. Wright's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wright, live in Edmonton. Pte. Freeman's father, James Freeman, is also a city resident.

Wire shortage in a fuse box of an Edmonton street railway bus at 95 street and 111 avenue at 10.08 a.m. Saturday caused a small blaze in which the wires were burned. A car was dispatched by Hall No. 5, who used chemical to put out the flames. The bus was towed to the barns and will be ready for service by Sunday, the railway department stated.

Dave Stirton, district traffic manager for C.P. Air Lines Mackenzie district, and W. Horner, supervisor of reservations for the company's western district, are on an aerial tour of the Mackenzie district. They are installing a new system for handling reservations at key points of the district, such as Fort Smith and Fort McMurray. Steadily mounting flow of traffic has made necessary increased facilities for handling passenger traffic in the Mackenzie district.

Annual dinner of Edmonton "A" Squadron, Imperial Frontiersmen, will take place on Wednesday next, April 28, at the Royal George hotel, when it is expected to have as guest speaker Lt.-Col. Gower-Rees, M.C., senior chaplain of the Imperial Frontiersmen in Canada and a member of the advisory council in England, Imperial headquarters, London. A program of music and entertainment is also scheduled. H. S. Reynolds will act as chairman. The dinner will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Flight-Lieutenant H. W. Baxter, until recently second-in-command at Regina recruiting station of the R.C.A.F., is now attached to No. 3 "M" depot, Edmonton. He will work with the selection board at the station here, interviewing applicants for aircrew. In the past Flt.-Lt. Baxter has been stationed at Toronto, Ottawa, Winnipeg and Saskatoon. Flt.-Lt. J. R. Teysdale, a medical officer, who has been attached to No. 3 recruiting station, has been transferred to No. 3 "M" depot, where he will replace Flt.-Lt. A. Hall, who is ill.

Eugene Grossi, Artists' Friend, Dies Suddenly

One of Canada's best-known piano tuners, who had the distinction of tuning pianos for many of the world's greatest artists, and with whom he formed lasting friendships, Eugene Grossi, 9811 111 street, died suddenly in his home Friday when stricken with a heart attack. He was 57 years old.

Mr. Grossi, who was known to hundreds of Edmonton residents whose homes he visited to tune and recondition pianos, came to Toronto and spent all his life from the time he was apprenticed to the piano house of Newcombe, in the profession to which he was devoted.

A highlight in his career and a tribute to his mastery in his profession was when the famous Chilean pianist, Claudio Arrau visited Edmonton last October. Mr. Arrau, whose own piano tuner always travels with him, found the piano tuned by Mr. Grossi in so fine a tone that it needed only another work on the part of the visiting tuner. Edmonton was the only point during the artist's Canadian tour that this happened.

Melbe, Kriesler, Rethberg, Heifetz and Crooks are only a few of the historic names in the world of art for whom Mr. Grossi tuned pianos to the perfect pitch required when these great artists appear.

WORK HIS HOBBY

With no hobbies save his work to which he was absorbingly devoted, Mr. Grossi was fond of making up epigrams about it. One of his favorite sayings was "It is easier to tune a piano for an artist than a ham." At one time Mr. Grossi retired and built a home in Toronto but missed his work so much that he shortly returned to Edmonton to continue his profession as tuner with Heintman and Company.

To survive him he leaves his wife, one son, Arthur, and one daughter, Eleanor. Three brothers, all in Toronto, also survive.

Funeral services will be held on Tuesday at 10 a.m. in St. Joseph's Cathedral with the Rev. W. A. Hryniuk officiating. Burial will be made in the Edmonton Roman Catholic cemetery.

Connelly - McKinley are in charge of the arrangements.

Chairman Appeals Victory Loan Aid

Canada needs the help of every loyal citizen now to adequately back and protect men and women in the services and to speed the time when the world may return to normal living, F. E. Osborne, Calgary, chairman National War Finance committee, stated in an appeal to Albertans to consider themselves necessary participants in the Fourth Victory Loan so that the minimum objective of $33,000,000 can be subscribed.

Text of Mr. Osborne's message reads:

On the eve of the Fourth Victory Loan campaign which opens on Monday to raise $33,000,000 in this province, I appeal to every loyal citizen of Alberta to consider himself as a necessary participant in this loan.

Canada needs the help of each one of us right now in order to adequately back and protect our fighting men and women and to speed the time when the world may return to normal living.

Our boys are all in the navy, the army, the air force, still not fall us. Let each one of us at home see to it that we do not fail them. Let us go all-out unanimously and magnificently. Remember it's a loan, not a gift, to our government at the crucial time.

Old-Time Resident Dies at 70 Years

A resident on the St. Albert trail for the last 50 years, Miss Eugenie Lalulippe died Saturday at her home. She was 70 years old.

To survive her Miss Lalulippe leaves two sisters, Blanche and Ada, both at home. A cousin, Antonio Anois of St. Albert, also survives.

The funeral will leave Connelly and McKinley's funeral home at 10 a.m. Monday, and will proceed to the St. Albert church, where services will be held at 10:30 a.m., with the Rev. J. Bideault, O.M.I., officiating. Burial will be made in the family plot at St. Albert cemetery.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

What do you think of the Dominion government's decision to subsidize farmers to check the cost of living increases in different Canadian cities?

THE ANSWERS

CARL E. BERG, secretary, Alberta Federation of Labor: I am glad that the government has undertaken this check-up. Undoubtedly the dollar is not getting any longer like the goods it was capable of purchasing at the beginning of the war, or even at the basic price date. It would appear that the check up is very necessary if only to allay the suspicions of workers throughout the Dominion.

* * *

FRED JENNINGS, carpenter: I am sure that the check-up will reveal a considerable lag in the commodity prices and the cost-of-living index. The value that can be purchased with a dollar today is considerably below that of the basic price value.

* * *

WILBUR HARCOURT, farmer: It is about time that this check was made. There is about the greatest comparison between the cost-of-living bonus and advance prices for commodities as there is between the actual price received by the farmers for their products and a partly price for those products.

Rain Falls Here On Good Friday

If the weather which visited Edmonton on Good Friday is any indication of the type of weather which will be experienced on Easter Sunday there will be little if any parade.

Commencing with strong chilly winds in the morning, as the day advanced the skies became threatening until early in the afternoon rain commenced to fall heavily later turning to large snowflakes. Today prospects of sun shortly are only fair to cool and cloudy.

Forecasts for Sunday are not particularly cheering for they read "mostly cloudy with light scattered showers, not much change in temperature."

Temperatures when here remained low during the latter part of the week compared to the warm sunny weather which dominated comparatively. Four.

Highest temperature reading on Friday was 52 above. The low temperature, during the night reached freezing point, was only 25 above. Freezing point is 32 above.

Italians—150,000 Strong

But Have No Fear, They're Only Bees

Alberta-Bound For 'Raid'

By STANLEY WILLIAMS

Alberta is faced with an imminent air raid by Italians—150,000 Italians. Strangely enough, these Italians are going to help win the war against the Axis and more strangely still, they are coming, not from enemy-held Naples or Genoa, but from California, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia

The invaders are Italian bees from California, Florida and Georgia. Word from the Provincial Apiarist's office in the Parliament Buildings is that the Alberta apiarists soon for air will be filled with the buzz of these Italian medium fighters, and "coming" as they do from California, countless hordes, except in comparison with military precision, and carry off their loot to their hives.

STORE PRECIOUS NECTAR

Storing their precious nectar in the hives, off go the medium fighters again, to dandelion fields, alfalfa fields, flower gardens, swooping in, attacking, and off again with the nectar, storing more and more until their "airdromes" are filled to the bursting point.

Filled with honey, which Canadian housewives are using in place of more because of the shortage of sugar. There will be a sugar shortage in Canada until the day we can sweep the Hun submarines from the seas. Until that day, the little Italian bees will be doing their part, making up what could become a serious shortage.

The bees now being imported into Alberta are coming in better shape than usual, reports W. G. LeMaistre, provincial government apiarist. Some of them, he says, are a little short of feed, but a little sugar will soon put this matter right.

Canada has found it good business to feed the bees what little sugar they need. And with good reason, too because for every ten pounds of sugar that goes to the bees, in a good year 100 pounds of honey are returned. And 100 pounds of honey is a lot of honey, in a super-short world.

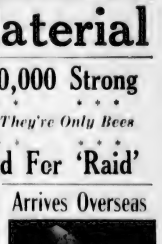

The aim of Alberta bee keepers is 6,000 bees to the hive by the end of June, reports Mr. LeMaistre. By that time the main honeyflow will have started, although other minor flows may be experienced before that time.

BEE-KEEPERS INCREASED

There is a large increase in the number of bee keepers in the province this year, and many new-comers are commencing it as a hobby, to help out with their sugar rationing.

Even if it is too late this year to think of keeping a hive or two of bees, there's no reason why you shouldn't start planning now to start next year.

The more honey produced here, the less sugar used. The less sugar needed, the "war sugar" can be

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

No matter where one lives, children are certain to learn ugly, gutter sex terms eventually.

Some learn them sooner than others, because they play where there are older children. Some make more fluent use of them. The mother blames other children, forgetting that as soon as her child begins to use such words, he, in turn, teaches them to others.

The concern all mothers feel is natural and one hopes that they will be successful in over-coming the child's show-off tendency to use words he doesn't understand.

To that end one must admit that a great fuss made over the words; the common practice of washing the mouth out with soap—to wash away the [illegible] words—succeeds very well in impressing them upon the child and making their use the more exciting.

[illegible] any word a [illegible] personal usefulness [illegible] cance or else it will be dropped promptly.

It seems pretty use[illegible] child of 2 or thereabouts when he picks up and uses a "cuss" word or a sex term that these are "bad" words. How much [illegible] no emotion whatever and substitute right at that moment a word that is more "socially" desirable.

When the child beg[illegible] older boys, or talking like his father or other adults, his emotions are those of a [illegible] dresses up in his father's tro[illegible] or a small girl who stru[illegible] her mother's hat or shoes. [illegible] feel themselves to be as big as anyone around them.

They use words with the same emotion. It makes them feel g[illegible] up. If likewise it creates a scene at home and mother and father explode with horror, then that is a double dividend. No use [illegible] "Don't let me hear [illegible] terrible word again." The[illegible] let you hear [illegible] stop using [illegible] ing an experience [illegible] will be the ones treated to them.

To ignore a word deprives it of some of its gloss. Explain, and we hope sincerely, "We don't talk that way and people will get a wrong opinion of you if you do. That word has meanings to older children, that it hasn't to you. Here is a better term to use."

Small boys will attempt to outcuss each other when together. It's like flexing a muscle. But any parent whose use of language is good can persuade a child (not command him) to make use of words which make a better impression upon adults. Even children like to be well-thought of by everyone.

Our leaflet, "Undesirable Bribes for Good Behavior," may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Patience Best Policy With Ration Book Use

New Employees and New Regulations in Wartime America Give Former Efficient and Speedy Service a Sudden Jolt

If we Americans have one characteristic that is more outstanding than any other, it is our impatience. We are always in a hurry. We rush about from one thing to another whether there is any need for haste or not. We gobble our food at quick lunch counters, and our national dish is a hot dog that we can take in our hands and devour as we sprint on our way.

We marry in haste and get mail order divorces. We can't wait for our children to grow up. We start them to school while they are still in the cradle and force a premature precocity upon them that makes them sophisticaed little worldlings by the time they are cutting their second teeth. We put up a sky-scraper in six months and pull it down in two weeks. Few of us have lingering diseases. We make death snappy by passing out by heart attacks or getting run over by automobiles. In a word, we want what we want when we want it. And we want it quick.

SPEED AVAILS LITTLE

Such being our national temperament, the thing about the war that [illegible] of our nerves more than anything else is the slowing down of our way of life that it has forced upon us. For things are happening to us that we never thought could happen. We are being regimented for the first time in our lives. Our quick thinking, our initiative, our push and energy are no longer of any avail. We are just part of the long queue that stands before the bus station, and the store counter and the movie doors and waits, and waits and waits. And waiting is not our dish. We loathe and resent it above anything else in the world.

So perhaps one of the blessings in disguise of the war is going to be to teach us patience. Heaven knows we need the lesson badly enough, for the thing that is at the bottom of half of our grouchiness and gloom these days is our impatience. Having to wait. Not being able to carry out a plan on the spur of the moment. Not getting what we want at the drop of a hat.

Wherever you go it's grumble, grumble, grumble. Trains late. It took that fumbling waiter long enough to bring me a cup of coffee to have served a state dinner. My dear, it is simply NO pleasure to go shopping now. All the good clerks gone into the army or doing war work, and nobody to wait on you except inexperienced young girls who don't know where anything is, nor what it costs, and whose minds are on their dates instead of their customers. And so on and on.

PATIENCE IS CURE

All of which is, of course, true. [illegible] equally true that it gets on the nerves of a pampered people [illegible] accustomed to efficiency and prompt service, but the point is that the cure for the situation is not getting peeved [illegible]

And this point of view is one that I would especially like to urge [illegible] has heretofore been no[illegible] their favorite amusement, but [illegible] shopping now [illegible] on the temper as well as the [illegible] watching for articles that once e[illegible] every bargain table you are apt to get cross and grouchy. But [illegible] take your irritation out on the girl across the counter for what is one of the minor calamities of war.

Be patient with these [illegible] king the [illegible] bewildered and [illegible] what to do next as is a baby learning to walk.

They don't know how to handle people. They have no sales' talk, no selling experience. They don't know how to flatter a woman into buying something she is undecided about, or how to keep her from buying something that she will return the next day. And it takes them forever to get a bundle put up, or make change. But they are doing the best they know how. They will learn. And in time they, too, will be the darling Miss Maggies who have a mortgage on us, and who know what we want before we know ourselves, and who make up our minds for us while we waver between a serviceable dress that has plenty of wear in it and a flimsy creation that makes us look glamorous.

So when you go a-shopping, take an unlimited supply of patience with you along with your Ration Book. You will need it. But it will be accounted to you for righteousness if you treat the poor little girl behind the counter the way you would like to have some other woman treat your daughter.

What To Do

For the summer months, clear all excess decoration and furniture from your home.

You'll find it's easier to keep clean and neater all the time. Pack away all your accessories except those you really need. Leave out only candle sticks for the mantle—only large serviceable ashtrays—only easy to wash curtains, and easily dusted lamp shades.

Remove scatter rugs—move the furniture back for a more spacious appearance and easier cleaning.

Bank your fireplace with ivy in a cascade effect. This gives a cool appearance to your room and creates a springlike atmosphere.

Smooth finished materials for [illegible] covers are cool-looking—and stay clean longer. Cool colors, greens, blues and pastels give your room a summery appearance.

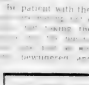

Entertain simply, though graciously and you will be a success.

Wear one Easter [illegible]

My Day

BY ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

[illegible] there had given up waiting for [illegible] were out [illegible] and found a [illegible] lunch, suddenly realized that we [illegible] there would be no train arriving [illegible] night.

We passed a good many trainloads of boys yesterday, going from one [illegible] interested in one group. They were aerial gunners and looked a very [illegible] men who would give the [illegible] lieutenant in charge of them plenty of work if he tried to keep up with them.

Just before their train started some of them dashed on [illegible] to get an autograph from me. I signed one on the platform [illegible] refused to sign a dozen more [illegible] get them back on their train, for it was about to start.

[illegible] Chandler, was off to school before I rose this morning, but the two little boys, Elliott, Junior, and David, were on hand to greet us. David has learned to walk since I was here last, and it is amusing to see his older brother guiding his rather uncertain footsteps.

This is a lovely restful home atmosphere but there is little time [illegible] but has taken a nurse's aide course and does her required [illegible]

Everywhere you turn in the house there are reminders of the father, who is so far away. Photographs, books, saddles and pictures all speak of his interests. The older children, of course, have [illegible] memory of his presence that I think they will be able to make him a real person to little David.

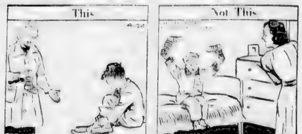

How many men there are today whose little children will have to learn to know them after their [illegible] is over. This is just another sacrifice made in this war. It may seem insignificant, and yet [illegible] both father and child of something never to be recaptured.

There are certain things in this house which have associations for me [illegible] of the things which belonged to my father. Because his name was Elliott, too, they have come into the possession of our [illegible] son. As I write, I look at a [illegible] painting of my father on [illegible] hunting horse, which I remember very well. They stand in a Long Island field with dogs around them, and you feel that the man, his horse, the dogs and the countryside were all on friendly terms. The horse's name was "Mohawk." He could jump anything and was never weary.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

This is the last of a series of six articles discussing what I consider the rarest play in bridge, the smother play or trump coup. My suggestion is that you clip these six smother play hands and keep them. You will always find them enjoyable to review.

South's six heart contract on today's hand was a natural one, although as it happened, six spades could have been made more easily,

North: ♠ K Q 4 3 ♥ A 9 8 7 ♦ A 4 3 2 ♣ 9
West: ♠ J 10 8 5 ♥ K 5 4 3 ♦ Q 10 7 ♣ 6 2
East: ♠ 7 ♥ None ♦ J 9 8 5 ♣ K Q J 10 8 7 5 4
South (Dealer): ♠ A 9 6 2 ♥ Q J 10 6 2 ♦ K 6 ♣ A 3

Duplicate—E. and W. vul.

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♣
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 N T	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	6 ♥	Pass

Opening—♣ 6. 24

there being then only a losing trump trick with North the declarer.

South won the opening lead with the ace of clubs and led the queen of hearts. West refused to cover and East failed to follow. Another heart was won with the eight in dummy. The king of spades was followed with a small spade, and again East discarded, South winning with the ace.

It now looked bad for the contract. Apparently a spade and one heart or one diamond must be lost. However, the declarer found a way to make the smother play. He ruffed his losing club with dummy's nine of trumps, led a diamond to the king, then back to the ace in dummy. The third round of diamonds was ruffed, the queen of spades cashed, and now dummy's last diamond was led. East won with the jack, South discarding his last spade. Now East had to return a club, which South ruffed, and West was through. The smother play had captured a very important trump trick and the small slam contract was fulfilled.

War Kitchen

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Here are vital defences against malnutrition in wartime—recipes for fresh, non-rationed vegetables. They come from "Garden for Victory," the timely guide to vegetable gardening, cooking and canning.

CARROTS FRIED WITH APPLES OR ONIONS
(serves 6)

Wash and scrape medium-sized carrots and cut lengthwise into thin slices. Slice apples in rings with the skin on, slice onions in thin rings. Place carrots and onions in a frying pan with a little melted fat or bacon drippings. Cover tightly and cook until almost tender. Add the apples, sprinkle with salt and sugar, and brown well.

SCALLOPED ONIONS AND PEANUTS

Cut the onions in quarters; cook them in boiling water until tender. Add salt just before the cooking is completed. Drain them and save the broth for soup. Butter a baking dish. Put in a layer of onions, and sprinkle over them some ground peanuts; add another layer of onions and peanuts. Pour over all a white sauce, well seasoned. Cover the top with buttered crumbs and brown the dish in the oven. Any vegetable may be scalloped in this way. Cheese may be used in place of peanuts if desired.

CARROT SOUFFLE
(serves 6)

One cup carrots, boiled and mashed, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 cup medium white sauce, 2 eggs, salt and paprika.

Add the carrots, the onion, and the seasoning to the white sauce, then add the beaten egg yolks. Beat the whites of the eggs until they are stiff. Fold them lightly into the first mixture, and turn this into a buttered baking dish. Set the dish in a pan of hot water and bake the souffle in a moderate oven (350-400 degrees F.) for 30 minutes. Serve it at once from the dish in which it is baked.

Monday's Menu

BREAKFAST: Sliced oranges, cracked wheat cereal, muffins, butter, margarine, or jam, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Carrot souffle, wholewheat toast, baked apples, oatmeal cookies, tea, milk.

DINNER: Stewed kidneys cooked in left-over chicken stock, parsley new potatoes, green beans, radishes, bread, butter or margarine, rhubarb pie, tea, milk.

Hi-School Hi-Lights

McDOUGALL COMMERCIAL
By Don Daynes

The Easter examinations have been written and a sigh of relief was heard in the halls Thursday noon, after they were completed. However, after the marks are returned some students will find themselves in a position far graver than the one they have just experienced because it won't be long before the department finals appear before them.

The next social event on Commercial's calendar will be a roller-skating party at the Silver Glade on Friday, May 7. It may include a program of dancing, should the patrons find the "skating" hard on their "nerves."

Another thought for the not-too-distant future is the Grad dance and banquet to be held in the Memorial Hall, June 5.

Pictures for the Grad Gazette were taken on the mornings of Wednesday and Thursday.

The E.H.S. I.S.C.F. had a meeting on Tuesday, which consisted of a Bible study, led by Gwen Roper, a Fellowship member, whose topic was "The New Life."

The Hi-Y club held a roller-skating party on Thursday night. Also the boys of the Hi-Y are planning to end the season with a banquet. They will elect new officers.

Deadline for the Grad Gazette was set for Thursday. Everyone on the staff is confident that this will be the best graduation edition that has yet been published.

Many New Houses Await Occupants

A lot of Edmonton residents are going to have nice new homes after the Kiwanis Bird House competition ends, for many entries have been received both from the city and country points. Closing date of entry for the contest is Monday, April 26.

All entries must be brought to the Empire room of the Hudson's Bay company store on that date and judging will take place on Tuesday, April 27.

All those who have built houses and do not wish to keep them for use in their own gardens are asked to put a price tag on them before bringing them in. Many people have made enquiries as to whether the houses are for sale so it is evident that few if any houses will go begging for new owners.

The Experts Say..

By MARGARET ECKER

OTTAWA, April 24.—(CP)—Tips from the experts for housewives serving on the home front:

Coupon Calendar—The ration administration of the Prices Board reminds consumers that April 30 is the last day for using purple coupons Nos. 1, 2 and 3, each good for the purchase of one-half pound of butter. Butter coupon No. 5, which became due April 10, and No. 6, due April 17, can be used any time up to May 31. . . . Green coupons No. 5 and 6 for the purchase of four ounces of tea or one pound of coffee are valid on and after May 1, as are pink coupons Nos. 5 and 6 for the purchase of two pounds of sugar.

Elbow Grease—So that there will be enough oils and wax to go around, the Prices Board urges housewives to make their protective polishes go as far as possible—to "spare the wax and spend the muscle."

* * *

Victory Gardens—The publicity and extension division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has issued a pamphlet which will be of value to everyone planning a Victory garden, and will send free copies to intending gardeners requesting them.

Basic Biscuits—A basic recipe for baking powder biscuits is a useful weapon in every wartime kitchen, says Laura Pepper of the Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture. . . . It uses no sugar and but little fat and, spread while hot with jam or jelly instead of butter, the biscuits are surprisingly good.

The recipe calls for two cups of all-purpose flour or two and a quarter cups of pastry flour; three teaspoons baking powder; one-half teaspoon salt; three tablespoons fat and two-thirds of a cup of milk.

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Cut in the shortening, using two knives or a pastry blender until the mixture resembles fine bread crumbs. Add milk slowly to make a soft, but not sticky, dough. Roll lightly on a floured board to one-half inch thickness. Cut, place on a pan and bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees Fahrenheit, for 12 to 15 minutes.

Thread for Thrift: In re-make, as in any other type of dressmaking, basting improves the tailoring—but the basting threads should not be wasted. Conservation-minded sewing withdraw these threads and use them over and over again. To prevent snarling, Kate Aiken, supervisor of the Prices Board's consumer branch conservation program, recommends winding them on spare spools.

* * *

The thread on those rainbow-hued spools purchased as an exact match on a mending job should be used on any of the under-side seams, which don't show anyway when the frock is finished. Splicing can be avoided if the sewer avoids using her spools as a pin cushion for her needles.

Lady Glasgow Thanks Canadians For Hospitality Show "Aussies"

By MARGARET ECKER

OTTAWA, April 24—(CP)—Lady Glasgow, on behalf of all the mothers of Australia, wants to thank the women of Canada for opening their homes to Australian airmen in training here.

The gracious, white-haired chatelaine of the large old-fashioned Australian high commissioner's residence in Ottawa, Lady Glasgow, looks as if she would like to gather all the Aussie flying boys into her own home. But she can't, obviously—so she makes it plain she's grateful to the Canadian women who are helping her out with the job.

"Canada has never been a strange country to us," said the wife of Sir William Glasgow, the Australian High Commissioner, to The Canadian Press. "We've been here three years and the kindness and hospitality have made us feel right at home.

"That's how the air trainees feel, too, as if they'd found a second home in Canada. I can feel how grateful the Australian mothers are, and I know they'd like a chance some day to open their homes to Canadian boys." One of Lady Glasgow's regrets is that no Australian boys train at nearby Uplands airport, now, as they used to, and "I miss them very much."

BORN IN QUEENSLAND

Life has been full for Lady Glasgow. She was born in Queensland, Australia, in a small country town. Sir William came from a little town nearby.

"We've known each other all our lives," she said. They were married young and went to live on a "station"—"You'd call it a ranch in Canada."

The Glasgows raised cattle in rugged, heavily-timbered country. The nearest town was 90 miles away.

"You have to be self-centred and learn to provide your own entertainment," she said. "There were no motor cars in those days." Finally, when the two small daughters began to grow up, the family moved to Melbourne.

Lady Glasgow is not one to talk about herself or her major-general husband because, she said, "We haven't done much to talk about." During the First Great War Sir William was on active service for five years. His wife put the daughters in school in Australia and went to England to do war work.

IN FIRST GREAT WAR

"Nothing exciting—packing parcels for prisoners of war, keeping hospital records, the usual thing. It was after the war that Sir William was knighted. The family travelled quite a bit and Sir William was a prominent figure in Australian public life.

"Then my husband was appointed high commissioner, just when we'd decided to lead a quiet life," Lady Glasgow added. "We came to Canada instead." The two daughters were left in Australia. They both married men on the land, as we say in "sheep ranchers," said their mother. "One is in Queensland, the other in South Australia."

Thank Offering Meeting Held

An Easter thank offering meeting was held by the W.M.S. of Buchanan church on Wednesday at the church, 12104 88 street, when instead of the annual pageant usually held at this time, the president or their representatives from other Women's Missionary Societies throughout the city, brought greetings either by words or song. Sixty-five women were in attendance.

Music was furnished by Miss K. Gould. Mrs. Pretty opened the meeting, Mrs. J. T. Stephens introduced the speakers, and Mrs. A. Stewart gave a skit. A prayer was presented by Miss Hickerson, and Mrs. Stephens closed the meeting with a benediction.

Churches represented were Bissell Memorial Institute, Central United, Eastwood, Highlands, Metropolitan, Norwood, Knox and Wesley.

Tea and other refreshments were served, and assisting were the Ladies' Aid societies and Baby Band mothers.

Mrs. J. MacGregor Elected Head Avenue Curling

Alberta Avenue Ladies' Curling Club held a general meeting and election of officers recently when Mrs. James MacGregor was named president for the coming season. Instead of having prizes this year members enjoyed a banquet to wind up the year. It was decided to donate $50 to the Merchant Marine and also to purchase a $50 bond which will be used to improve the club rooms after the war.

McCoy Health Service

It is gratifying to know that we on this continent are a dental conscious nation and the majority of parents are anxious to see that their children grow to maturity with sound well developed teeth. With the facilities available in schools and clinics, there is really no excuse for not arresting dental decay which has already commenced. However, we must go further than this. I cannot impress upon my readers too strongly the importance of adequate diet from which the necessary phosphorous and calcium and other minerals and vitamins may be obtained with which to build strong teeth.

The best authorities agree that after the age of 22 the diet has little influence on the teeth and that by this time they have completed their growth. It is also agreed that just as much attention should be paid to the baby teeth as to the second teeth. The effect of an improper diet is demonstrated by the early appearance of dental cares, irregular and uneven teeth, and discoloration. Dental decay is very rare among primitive people and is a product of civilization, due to the use of too many soft, highly refined foods, and the consequent digestive disorders which this soft starch diet produces.

Excess stomach acids are directly responsible for most of the dental diseases, such as pyorrhea, and these cannot be remedied by direct treatment to the teeth alone. Every effort must be made to build the general health by systemic treatment.

It is essential to keep the teeth clear of tartar, which has the effect of destroying the membrane just under the gum, and if deposits of tartar have accumulated your dentist will scale your teeth and at the same time he can estimate the amount of damage done, if any, by decay.

In eating the ordinary mixed diet the fraction of the food against the teeth is not sufficient to clean off the bacteria which forms between meals. To keep the teeth free from these bacteria the teeth should be brushed from all directions, including up and down and between the teeth. It is very important to give the gums a good brushing even though they bleed a little at first. After a few days the bleeding will stop, providing no disease is present.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered if large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Miss D. Craighill Is Married In Portage La Prairie Church

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man., April 24.—Many Edmonton people were interested in the wedding which took place here at St. Mary's Anglican church in mid-April, when Miss Dorothy Vera Craighill of Edmonton, daughter of Mrs. J. Craighill also of Edmonton, and the late Mr. Craighill, became the bride of Frank Hubert Barnstable, of Portage La Prairie, only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Barnstable of Hardisty, Alta. The Rev. Murray Creal performed the ceremony.

The church was attractively arranged with pink and white carnations, daffodils and pussy willows.

The bride chose an afternoon ensemble of silk crepe in Queen's blue, featuring short pleated basque jacket and embroidered bodice. She wore a large scallop-brimmed rose hat, accessories of beige and corsage of talisman roses. A gold locket, gift of the bridegroom, was her only piece of jewelry.

Mrs. Arthur F. Spandler was matron of honor. She was frocked in a two-piece dress of Churchill blue, with navy sequins trim, accessories of cardinal red, tone and corsage of red and pink roses.

Arthur C. Spandler was best man.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Spandler. The bridal table, set with a white embroidered cloth was centred by a three tiered wedding cake flanked with tall white tapers in silver holders.

Pouring tea were Mrs. D. K. Moir and Mrs. J. Mills. Mrs. H. White and Mrs. F. Gibbons assisted with the serving.

Cecil Morton proposed a toast to the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnstable will make their home at Portage la Prairie, where the bridegroom is stationed as chief radio technician at No. 7 Air Observer School.

The bride has her degree in music from the Toronto Conservatory, and before her marriage was a member of the staff of the Edmonton Conservatory.

"Calling Mrs. Jones"

RATIONING? Yes, perhaps more and more, as events dictate. Yet, how small rationing of THINGS is, in contrast to the continued suspense, denial and conditioning brought about by separation from your loved ones.

Your role is difficult. How easy it is to yield to a depressed mood. Despite all this, when everything seems dark and your whole world seems to collapse, just then a light, a gleam appears, which finds expression in the form of an unspoken word for a long lost relative, or a kind thought and deed for an old friend or love of one in a uniform. Call this what you will. Yet, stripped of all fancy words, it boils down to nothing but the naked truth and goodness within you—it makes you a symbol of a living religion. Have faith, Mrs. Jones. Out of all this rationing a New Life must come, which will bring you peace of mind and contentment. It must come . . . it must. . . .

Victory Food Garden Guide!

Vegetables produced in spare time will make available, somewhere, man and woman hours for other purposes. Health is of first importance, and vegetables that are easily grown may furnish the necessary vitamins and minerals. This plan is intended primarily for amateurs desiring to grow vegetables in their small back yards.

SOIL PREPARATION

All plants thrive best in full sunshine, so avoid planting under trees. Spread barnyard manure over the soil, and dig thoroughly. Rake down until a good tilth is obtained. Do not sow seeds or set out plants until the soil is free. Use a bright hoe or spade, and when the soil leaves the hoe "fresh" then plant each variety.

Under war conditions conservation of vegetable seeds is imperative, as many are difficult to obtain. Follow the directions laid down for each crop. Do not overlook waste. Spacing of plants is stated for each variety. To save seed, empty packages into a saucer and sow by hand.

CULTIVATION

In cultivating the garden, a fork, hoe, and a five-tooth hand cultivator are the most suitable tools to use. Cultivate often to destroy weeds, maintain moisture, and allow air circulation to the root system. Use care when cultivating so as not to cause injury to the plants, as injury often produces diseases.

Tomatoes, celery, cauliflower, cabbage, onions and squash do not require hoeing when they near maturity, as fruits may be injured. Remove any weeds by hand-pulling.

INDIVIDUAL CROPS

BEANS. May be planted in continuous rows, 20" apart in the row. Plant to a depth of 3". Use the corner of a hoe to open the furrow.

Early Varieties—Golden Wax, Round Pod Wax or Green. Sow early varieties May 4th to May 24th.

Late Varieties—Bountiful, Refugee. Sow in June, July, August.

Do not cultivate or pick beans when vines are wet.

BEETS. Sow seeds 1" deep and 1" apart for early crop. Rows 15" apart.

Early Variety—Crosbys Flat Egyptian. Sow early crop when soil is ready for sale.

Late Varieties—Detroit Dark Red. Sow, for late crop, June 25th to July 5th.

If preferred, Detroit Dark Red may be used for early sowing.

CABBAGE. Space plants for early crop 15" apart in the row, and 24" between rows.

Early Varieties—Golden Acre, Jersey Wakefield. Plant early as possible when soil is ready.

Late Varieties—Drumhead, Stone Head, Danish Ball Head. Late plantings may be set out June 12th. Space late varieties 30" apart in the row.

CARROTS. Sow seeds ½" deep using seeds carefully. When plants are 1" high, thin out each crop from 3" apart.

Early crop can be put down as soon as soil is ready, May.

For late crop, sow for winter use, sow from June 20th to July 5th.

Varieties—Nantes, Nantes, chantenay, Chantenay, Danvers Half Long. Any of these varieties may be planted for early or late crop.

CORN. Plant in hills 2' by 2', and place seed 2" deep; 6 seed to a hill.

Early Varieties—Golden Bantam, Golden Sunshine. For early crop, sow seed May 8th to May 24th.

Late Varieties—Evergreen, Early Sweet, Canada Hybrid. For late sowing, sow not later than June 15th.

CUCUMBER. On light sand soil, plant the seed on the level of the ground. On heavy soil, it is advisable to raise the seed bed a few inches above the level. This allows drainage and warms the earth quicker in spring. Space hills 8' apart, and when plants are 2" high remove the weakest, leaving 3 plants to a hill. Sow 6 seeds to a hill, allowing for poor germination.

Varieties—White Spine, Straight 8, Early Fortune.

LETTUCE. Sow seed 8" apart for head lettuce; make a shallow hoe ½" deep and cover over and firm soil on the seeds. When 2" high remove all but one plant. This enables the plant to obtain food to make a proper head.

Variety of Head Lettuce—Early York. To be sown mid to early in spring, and at intervals of 30 days until August 20th.

Variety of Leaf Lettuce—Grand Rapids. In using leaf lettuce, sow every 2" as above.

ONIONS. Sow seed ½" deep in rows, and thin to 2". Use all surplus onions for table use as salads. Clay or black loams are best suited for onion culture. Sow early crop, April 20th to May 5th. Space rows 18" apart.

For Early Use—Sow Silver King.

For Late Crop or Winter Use—Sow Yellow Globe Danvers.

PEAS. May be sown very early, in rows 2" deep, and the rows 18" apart.

Early Varieties—Little Gem, Little Marvel.

Peas may be sown every month until August 5th.

Late Varieties—Lincoln, Penn. Pan, Telephone.

POTATOES. Plant sets 4" deep, 12" apart in rows, 24" between rows. Best weight for sets—2 ozs.

Early Varieties—Irish Cobbler, Warba. Plant at end of April or early May.

Late Varieties—Chinewa, Kalandin, Dooley. Plant not later than June 15th.

RADISH. Sow in rows, or broadcast, ½" deep, and firm the soil after planting. Sow every two weeks for sweet and tender radishes.

Varieties—Scarlet White Tip, French Breakfast, Scarlet Globe, White Icicle.

TOMATOES. Secure plants from grower or dealer when possible. When planting, make a hole deep enough to cover the roots. Do not plant deep.

If tomatoes are grown on stakes, use a stake 1½" diameter, 5½' long. Drive in ground 16", and space 2' by 2' apart.

Pruning—The plants to stake, which will require attention every seven days. Cut or pinch off all side shoots, leaving only the main stem. When 5 sets of fruit are on the plant, cut off the terminal bud, but do not cut off the leaves. This advances maturity.

Plant June 1st to 5th.

Choice Varieties for Staking—Sutton's Best of All, Harkness, Bonny Best.

For Trailing—Bonnie Best, John Baer, Pritchard.

SWISS CHARD. Sow seeds in May, 18" apart in the row and 1" deep. When leaves are ready for use, they are available until late fall.

Varieties—Swiss Chard.

WATERING THE GARDEN

If required, water during the morning; this allows the plants to drain and absorb the moisture before the sun can burn or cause scalding of the leaves.

For lettuce, place the water direct on the soil around the plant, but not on the leaves.

When watering, wet the soil thoroughly, and not too often.

TRANSPLANTING

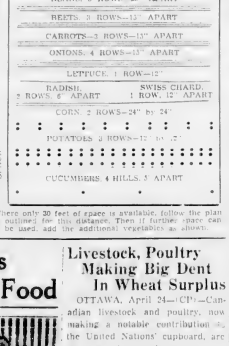

When transplanting cabbage, cauliflower and tomatoes, be sure they are made firm before leaving. Loose planting often means loss.

Do not plant too deep, and when making a hole, make it wide and spread the roots, as this enables the plant to obtain moisture and food quickly. In soil a dry, water around the plant when set out.

INSECTS AND DISEASES

There are many brands and formulas sold by all seed houses to control insects and diseases, with full directions for use on each packet or bottle.

SUGGESTED PLAN FOR GARDEN 20'x30'

Where only 20 feet of space is available, follow the plan as outlined for this distance. Then if further space can be used, add the additional vegetables as shown.

How to Plant And Grow Roses

Preparation of Ground and Best Situation—A place sheltered from high winds, open, and not surrounded by trees, should, if possible, be assigned to them; a S.E. or S.W. aspect is preferable, the beds being situated so as to receive the morning sun.

Manuring—Roses being gross feeders require a quantity of manure. Cow or sheep manure is the best, but any other manure may be used providing it is well decayed.

Liquid manure may be fed every two weeks until the end of August when all feeding should cease to allow the wood to ripen. Pulverized sheep manure at the rate of one pound to every gallon of water will be found beneficial.

Watering—Should the spring or summer prove dry, it is necessary to water and all newly planted bushes should be saturated weekly, but overhead, but around the main stem, preferably in the morning. Never wet the foliage in late evening.

Suckering—It will have been noticed by growers of Pike's Rose bushes that the biar upon which they are budded throws very few suckers. However, all briar roots will sucker at times, and it is very important to get rid of these sucker or briar growth as speedily as possible. In cutting off the sucker growth do so close to the junction of the root, if allowed to grow it weakens the growth of the true plant. If the sucker growth is not cut off close to the root it will likely throw up a double sucker growth.

Pruning—The proper method of pruning. All bedding roses require to be hard pruned the first spring after planting, cutting them back to two or in case of the stronger varieties three eyes from the base. Make a point of pruning to an eye pointing outwards, thus leaving room for expansion. In subsequent years cut out all weak growth and cut down to 4 or 5 eyes. Do not prune in the fall. April is the time to prune.

When exhibition blooms are required it is advisable to cut back the bushes more severely which will encourage stronger growth.

A good rule to follow when pruning is: the weaker the bush the more it should be pruned and the stronger the bush less pruning is necessary.

Bracken Sees Merit "In All Parties"

CHILLIWACK, B.C., April 24. — (CP)—Dr. Bracken, Progressive Conservative party leader, speaking at a dinner in his honor here last night said he reserved the right to take the good ideas from any party for Canada's benefit and added he himself "might be called a Liberal Progressive Conservative with C.C.F. leanings."

Mr. Bracken was replying to the remarks of Harry Barber, chairman at the dinner. Mr. Barber had commented that there were "Old Line Tories, Grits" and members of other parties present.

The Progressive Conservative leader replied:

"I recognize merit in all political parties and very little in some. I reserve the right to take the good ideas from any one of them for the benefit of Canada. I had never cast a vote in Manitoba when I was drafted to the premiership of that province. My father voted Conservative, my mother Liberal. I might be called a liberal Progressive Conservative with C.C.F. leanings."

RYE IN EAST AFRICA

MOMBASA. — (CP) — Trial plots of rye, never before grown in Uganda, have proved so successful the Protectorate hopes to grow enough this year to supply the needs of 7,000 Polish refugees in the colony.

THIS YEAR PLANT A VICTORY GARDEN

Seven Sowings Needed for All-Summer Salad Leaves

Green, leafy vegetables supply your family with Vitamin A and calcium, the vitamin and mineral which are expected to be scarcest in war time rationing.

The green leafy vegetables include the leaf crops which are served uncooked in salads. If you like bowl salads, you can serve one at least once a day without complaint.

Many leaves can be used for bowl salad, including all the greens which are also cooked. But our chief reliance will probably be on leaf lettuce and endive, especially the form known as escarolle, or broad leaved endive. How can one or the other of these fine vegetables be made available for bowl salad from early summer until killing frosts arrive in the fall?

Leaf lettuce will be large enough to use in 30 days from sowing, and can be sown April 15, let us assume. The weather will determine the exact date. If we sow a twenty foot row April 15, it will produce daily salads for a family of four from May 15 to June 4, and a second 20 foot row sown about May 5, will be ready to use June 5 and provide lettuce until June 25. A third sowing of the same size, if made May 25, will be ready a month later and will probably give you the last harvest of lettuce before midsummer heat begins to make this crop go to seed.

During the hot weather we must depend on escarolle, which takes 90 days to mature. So sowing a row April 15, at the same time as the first lettuce sowing, we may have it ready July 15 when trouble with lettuce usually begins. Two 20-foot sowings of endive, made twenty days apart, will provide you with daily salad leaves until August 24.

The New Broad Leaf Endive Is a Fine Summer Salad

In the meanwhile you will have sown a successive crop to peas, turnips, beans, or carrots which have been used up in June, another row of leaf lettuce and another of endive. The lettuce should be ready late in August, and it will be followed by the escarolle in the fall, when it is most delicious. This will complete your 120 days or more of green salad leaves, harvested from your garden continuously, in fine quality and abundant supply.

This, you will note, takes seven separate sowings, spaced at carefully estimated intervals, and requires that 140 feet of garden space be devoted to these two vegetables. Obviously if you sow all 140 feet at once early in the spring, as may be done, in poorly planned gardens, you will have a superabundance of green leaves in the early summer, and do without the rest of the season.

It is impossible to give any gardener a complete pattern of his planting schedule, he must figure it out for himself, and it must be closely related to his actual family needs.

Rangoon Freight Yards Attacked

NEW DELHI, April 24.— (CP)— The Allies Thursday night followed up a daylight air raid on Japanese troops in the Upper Chindwin area of Burma by an attack on the Mangalon freight yards at Rangoon, a British communique disclosed yesterday.

The Chindwin assault in which enemy troops were machine-gunned and bombed was coupled with a raid on the main Japanese airfield at Akyab in the Mayu peninsula battle zone in which hits were scored on the runway.

Fighter planes damaged signal equipment, a small armored car and destroyed a truck loaded with gasoline, the communique said.

Nearly one-tenth of the entire U.S. population was hospitalized in 1942.

Victory Garden Carrots Delicious Health Food

If Victory Garden crops were to be rated according to the quantity of vitamins they are likely to contribute to the family diet all season long, the carrot would probably be rated next to the tomato.

Carrots are definitely a health food. They say that pilots of the Royal Air Force are required to eat them regularly every day to keep their eyesight keen. But not everybody likes carrots.

If your family belongs to the anti-carrot faction, and you are planning your first vegetable garden, do not omit carrots from the schedule just because of a prejudice. If you have never eaten carrots fresh from your own garden, then you have no idea how delicious they can be.

Sow a row, with the very first crops you start in the garden. First, mix the carrot seed with a pinch or two of early radishes, because carrots germinate slowly, and the radishes will come up right away and "mark the row" as gardeners say, so you may avoid disturbing it in cultivation. In a shallow drill, sow the seeds thinly (fifteen to the inch). When the radishes appear and mature, pull up and eat them promptly so they will not crowd the carrots which succeed them.

Let the carrots grow without thinning until some are as thick as lead pencils, then begin to thin out and cook the excess roots. You will be amazed at the flavor and tenderness of these tiny carrots, and from then on your prejudice will disappear.

While carrots are most delicious when they are young, they still remain sweet and tender after they have grown all summer in the garden. They will mature well-spaced, but close in the row so as to loosen each other. But the best plan is to make successive sowings, and harvest them before they are full grown. If you wish to can carrots, the smaller they are the more delicious you will find them next winter. It is a good plan to sow a special row for canning, and harvest them when they reach the size desired.

When carrots are allowed to mature, they should be pulled when the tops begin to turn yellow. If left in the ground they will lose quality.

C. C. F. Candidate Named at Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, April 24 — (CP) — Alistair Stewart Thursday night was unanimously chosen C.C.F. candidate for Winnipeg North centre in the next Dominion general election. The nomination followed the recent decision of the National Council of the C.C.F. which urged all constituencies to nominate the party candidates as early as possible to be well organized for a federal election whenever one is called.

Rescue Sailors

LONDON, April 24—(CP)—The Spanish radio, quoted by Reuters News Agency, yesterday reported one Canadian and 10 American sailors were picked up by the Spanish ship Cabo Huertas when their 10,000-ton steamship was sunk. They were taken to Las Palmas, the report said.

The London tube, opened in 1863, was the world's first subway system.

Livestock, Poultry Making Big Dent In Wheat Surplus

OTTAWA, April 24—(CP)—Canadian livestock and poultry, now making a notable contribution to the United Nations' cupboard, are chewing industriously at the wheat surplus, official figures showed yesterday.

An estimated 74,152,000 bushels of wheat will be required for feed during the crop year ending July 31, the Dominion bureau of statistics said.

This compares with 55,650,000 bushels consumed as feed in 1941-42. These figures do not include wheat shipped from one province to another and used for feed.

Of the total wheat stocks of 296,242,515 bushels on March 31, the holdings on farms were 207,725,000 bushels, compared with 161,576,000 bushels on the same date last year.

DARK JUNGLES

By JOHN C. FLEMING AND LOIS EBY

THE STORY: Allison Topping, society girl, is off to Guatemala to join her fiance's uncle Jonathan Barry Fielding, wealthy coffee grower and a quicksilver mine operated by the Quiche Indian tribe, has tried many times to dissuade her. At Puerto Barrios, Allison introduces Barry to Renaldo, her father's overseer. Be-

... to them on the arduous mule trek through the jungle to the plantation. Renaldo's rude is to go on with him into Quiche territory.

CHAPTER X

FOR six days the tortuous trek continued through the rain-drenched jungle. Six days of heat, of aching from the long hours in the saddle of fighting off the hordes of voracious insects. Even Barry, who had a natural affinity for the tropics, felt the gruelling strain of the continued discomfort. His anxiety for the stubborn girl riding before him mounted.

As they reached the chicle estancia they were going for the night and Allison arose from her saddle, anger at Renaldo rose in him. He waited till the servants had cleared the small thatched hut and she was lying in her mosquito tent. Then he searched out the Spaniard.

Renaldo was in the clearing beside the hut overseeing the unloading of the mules for the night. The flickering light of the small campfire illuminated his tall erect figure, threw dancing shadows across his narrow, handsome face as he called orders to Jose and the Indian servants.

Barry's wrath rose at the fine protection against the buzzing insects.

"Is the trip worse than usual?" he asked Renaldo.

"About the same." Renaldo went on untying ropes lashed about the donkey's head.

Barry's anger exploded. "Then why in hell did you let her come?"

Renaldo turned darkly amused eyes on Barry and shrugged. "You tried to stop her, too, did you not, Mr. Fielding?"

Barry glowered at him. "If I had known it was going to be a murderous trek like this," he said bitterly, "I'd have stopped her if I'd had to use brass knuckles for arguments. How much longer is it?"

"We ought to be at the head estancia by mid-afternoon tomorrow," the Spaniard murmured unperturbing.

"I don't believe she'll stand it," he said then.

. . . .

Renaldo did not answer at once. He waved a graceful hand toward the unloaded group of pack mules now being rubbed down by the Indian boys.

"They are using a mixture of sand and water," he told Barry. "It is to scrape off the big red ant, black ticks that bedevil the poor creatures." He crossed to superintend the raking of ramon leaves for the mules' feeding. When he finally returned, there was a strange glimmer of a smile on his face. He said to Barry without preface:

"You didn't know her father."

Barry scowled at him. "What do you mean?"

"Jeremiah Topping," Renaldo murmured, the glint of humor deepening in his eyes. "He was frail, too, but he went through more than six natives could endure. She will finish the trip. I only hope it will prove sufficiently uncomfortable so that she will return immediately to the coast."

In sudden, blind rage, Barry swung on him. Renaldo staggered back under the blow's impact. But as Barry moved in for battle his arms were suddenly pinioned to his sides by the iron grip of Jose. As he struggled to free himself from the giant mulateer, Renaldo stepped close. There was no anger or resentment on his face.

"I do not wish to fight you, Mr. Fielding," he said in quiet, conversational tones. "It is not good for the natives to see white men bickering among themselves. Release him, Jose." As the mulateer dropped his huge arms, Renaldo added, "Please know I am also trying to do what is best for Miss Topping. It is only to my best interests. After all, she is my employer."

Barry was forced to admit as the mule train sloshed along the next afternoon that Renaldo was right. Though he had carried Allison to her mule that morning, looking too white and sick to sit upright, she had stuck it out hour after hour through the fetid heat of the day, swaying drunkenly in the saddle but refusing to stop.

Only once did she come out of her sick stupor to notice what was going on.

"Won't it ever stop raining," she asked, bitterly.

Renaldo replied quietly, "This is called the 'rain forest.' There probably is more rainfall around here than any other spot in the world. That is why the zapote tree grows so well."

"Thanks!" Her voice was a muffled half scream, half sob Barry thought for a minute she had broken. But her sobs dwindled out wearily and her small body in the torn and muddy white suit continued to stay comparatively upright on the muscular little mule as it sloshed along the slippery trail. He could see her pat the animal's shaggy neck after a hard bit of going and mumble affectionate words of praise. She would stick it out, he thought with reluctant admiration, just as Renaldo had predicted. Even if they had to carry her in a litter back to the coast.

When at last Renaldo turned in his saddle and called back, "Another hour will see us at home," Barry could scarcely believe it.

The Indian boys chattered jubilantly, sang wailing melodies to relieve their impatience. Even the mules seemed to sense their trial was about over. The caravan moved with a quickened tempo.

Allison turned slowly and looked back at Barry. There was a dazed look on her damp, white petal face, and she formed the words with difficulty but with a quavering note of mirth.

"Did you see Cassidy's face when Renaldo said 'home'? You should feel him. He's quivering all over."

He made a stout march for a hundredth. Barry grinned. He could see the mule shaking now. It took sideways mincing steps back toward one side of the trail.

Sudden apprehension clutched Barry. He dug spurs into his own animal and started forward, calling, "something's there!" and pulling at the flashlight in his pocket. Even as he rode forward, the slender writhing form slid upward through the air in the arc of light toward the mule!

As Allison's scream echoed through the dark fastness of the jungle, the gold breast of a night snake gripped Rosa. Its coils Renaldo's spoke almost together. The snake lay writhing its last in the ooze of the trail. But Barry knew it had been too late. He reached the girl's side as Renaldo came up. His arm jerked stiffly with the flashlight. Renaldo tore it from him and swept the light over Allison's body with thorough speed. Then slowly he moved it down over the front flank of the animal.

"Take her off," he said brusquely. "Thank God, the mule got it!"

His command was none too soon. Allison was scarcely off when the small animal toppled into the mud.

"Cassidy!" Allison screamed. "Can't you help him, for—"

"There is nothing you can do," Renaldo said steadily. His look indicated the still form of the snake. "That is a bushmaster. In a few minutes Cassidy will be with those his size. If you will permit—"

She nodded. She sobbed as Renaldo's shot rang out. The Spaniard said soothingly as he holstered his gun, "We are practically at the estancia. We will go on to-night."

But Allison had fainted in Barry's arms.

North Alberta Finishes Plans Victory Loan

Northern Alberta in general and Edmonton in particular, will hold the national spotlight on Monday, the opening day of Canada's Fourth Victory Loan drive, when Hon. J. L. Ilsley, minister of finance, will participate in opening ceremonies.

Determined to give Northern Alberta's campaign a rousing send-off, officials have completed plans for Monday morning, and at the same time have the sales machinery throughout the 60 rural units, and the city of Edmonton, ready to get into action.

A brief ceremony centering on Mr. Ilsley has been arranged for 11 a.m. Monday, at the corner of Jasper avenue and 101 street. All services of His Majesty's forces, as well as a representative group from the United States Army Air Force will participate in a parade that will take them from the market square, south to Jasper avenue, then west to 105 street, and back along Jasper to 101 street, where the official opening ceremony will take place.

ARMED SERVICES

Participating will be members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, C.W.A.C., U.S. Army Air Force and a specially selected precision squad from the Women's Division R.C.A.F., Calgary.

All parade plans for Monday and other campaign activities in which men of His Majesty's services will be participating later, are under direction of Group Captain G. at Smith, officer commanding No. 2 "M" Depot. He is receiving fullest co-operation from Lt. Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., area commandant, and Lt. J. A. Dawson, officer commanding H.M.C.S. "Nonsuch," R.C.N.V.R., and from officers in charge of various other armed service units in Edmonton.

VOLLEY OF BOMBS

At 11 a.m. a volley of aerial bombs will be the starting signal for the ceremonies, the general route will be placed by the band from No. 2 Initial Training School, under direction of Flt. Sgt. R. D. Ferguson, and escort addresses will be given by R. E. Staples, chairman of the campaign; His Honor Lt. Gov. J. C. Bowen and Mr. Ilsley.

It is expected that a number of planes will hover over the centre of the city during the time of the ceremony.

To add to the picture, the parade will march through streets decorated with Victory Loan display cards posted on every lamp standard. The cards in red, white and blue, carry reminders that the sailor, soldier and airman partners, need help of citizens. Campaign headquarters are also decorated with a huge illustrated placard, reading "Don't Throw a Ride on a Serviceman's Back. Carry Your Own Weight."

While Edmonton is prepared to open the three-weeks' drive in colorful fashion, Northern Alberta's 60 rural units, which include the city of Wetaskiwin and all the towns, are equally prepared. Many centres are also planning colorful opening ceremonies for Monday.

London Has Brief Air Raid Alarm

LONDON, April 24. — (CP) — London was under a brief air raid warning last night and for a time planes were heard from the centre of the city and anti-aircraft fire was heavy. The all-clear followed shortly. Some casualties were caused in a west Midlands town bombed by a single raider.

Drop Case Against 12 French Sailors

NEW YORK, April 24.—(CP)—The New York Herald Tribune says in a news story today that Francis Biddle, attorney-general of the United States, has dropped the case against 12 French sailors held in custody since March 8 for deserting French warships in United States ports.

Armed Forces Plan Aid Victory Loan

Naval, military and air force establishments in Edmonton have completed preparations for a concentrated drive to put Canada's Fourth Victory Loan campaign over the top.

Committees have been set up in each of the city establishments. In some cases establishment quotas have been set and a keen rivalry for top place among the various branches of the services is sure to develop.

Lt.-Col. Alan H. Elliott, E.D., officer commanding the Edmonton wing of the district depot, heads a committee in charge of the Victory Loan drive for troops quartered at the Prince of Wales Armory.

No quota has been set but 100 per cent subscription is the objective.

At No. 2 "M" depot, R.C.A.F., Flt. L. L. R. West is heading the organization established there for the Victory loan drive.

Squadron Leader J. G. Wheeler, administrative officer at No. 4 Initial Training School, R.C.A.F., is in charge of the campaign there.

At No. 2 Air Observers School an organization has also been set up and a similar strong committee will function at H.M.C.S. Nonsuch, the Edmonton naval establishment.

The officers and men in training and in charge of training of armed units in Edmonton are going to "Back the Attack" for all they are worth.

Road Report

A.M.A. Safety Slogan: Don't act smart when driving; be smart.

Saturday's road report: Road reports received this morning indicate rough driving at Cherhill, muddy roads at Waskatenau, impassable at Two Hills, good around St. Paul, but cut off from Edmonton, good at Chauvin, good at Viking, rough at Hay Lakes, Bawlfie, Rumsey and Thorsby, good at Athabasca, and fair at Peace River.

Ferries are still not operating at Dunvegan or Fort St. John. Eight rains has been reported from most points covered in the report above.

Getting Around

in a short period of time indicates clearly that something is wrong either with the equipment or method of operation of street cars along that short stretch of track.

Newspaper photographs reveal plainly the seriousness of the latest crash on the hill. And after looking over the pictures one is convinced that a toll of just two persons injured is little short of a miracle.

Street Railway Superintendent Thomas Ferrier and other officials have been up against a tough job in the past year. Large numbers of motormen with long experience have joined the armed forces or taken other war jobs. It is becoming increasingly difficult to secure replacements, particularly in view of the fact that all city employees serving in the armed forces are guaranteed their jobs on return. With other kinds of work plentiful at present few men are attracted to jobs that have no guarantee of permanency.

In addition to this serious problem is added an unprecedented increase in the volume of traffic.

But if accidents of the kind that have occurred recently, continue, it will be necessary to give much longer periods of training to new operators, even if it means a slowing down of service in general for the time being.

Shaw "Too Old" For Labor Meet

LONDON, April 24 — (CP) — George Bernard Shaw, who is 86, expressed gratification yesterday at an invitation to attend the Independent Labor Party jubilee conference Saturday, but sent his regrets in a note saying "I am too damned old. Doddering ancient pioneers—specters from the past—ought to be thrown out if they were not senile enough to stay away."

Accident Victims Are Recovering

Condition of Nick J. Hrdesky, of 10660 98 street, Edmonton street railway motorman, injured on Thursday night when the car he was operating crashed into the rear of another streetcar, was unchanged Saturday, according to Misericordia hospital officials. Hrdesky suffered a broken left leg and arm, a cut over the groin and facial cuts in the crash of the two vehicles.

Second victim of the accident, Mrs. Thelma Grewar, of 10726 98 avenue, also taken to the Misericordia hospital suffered cuts to the right hand. She was permitted to leave the institution on Friday, but when found to be suffering from rib injuries, returned there. She was said to be resting comfortably.

Joe E. Brown Wows Troops in Pacific War Area

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24. — (AP)—Comedian Joe E. Brown wowed the boys in the Pacific war area. Even captured Japanese recognized his big mouth.

Joe entertained thousands of fighting men from Icy Alaska to steaming New Guinea jungles on a three-month memorial tour he had pledged to his dead son, Capt. Don Brown of the army air corps.

Fifteen pounds lighter, Joe arrived from the Pacific yesterday and is headed for a rest at his Hollywood home before leaving again for Alaska on another tour.

Instead, the India office said, the defence rule will be revised.

This was the first offense of a 19-year-old youth, charged with the theft of a bicycle, the city police court was told Saturday morning. The accused, counsel stated, had succumbed to temptation. He had been unable to get into the air force after twice trying. He asked for leniency.

The crown pointed out that there had been quite a number of thefts of bicycles in the city and while not suggesting that the accused had taken all of them, said the situation was such that a fine, at least should be imposed.

The accused was warned by Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., that he would have to watch what he was doing, as the next step was jail. He imposed a fine of $10 and costs or 14 days.

Phillip Low, on three charges of theft due to keeping money not his own, was remanded to the next sitting of the supreme court for trial and placed on bond of $3,000. Axis Headquarters In N. Africa Moved LONDON, April 24.—(CP)—The Daily Telegraph and Morning Post said today in a story from Stockholm that Axis headquarters in North Africa have been removed from Tunis to Sicily and now are established in a village on the outskirts of the city of Messina.

Hitlow had the power, under wartime regulations, to issue an ordinance ordering detention of the imprisoned leaders.

3 Airmen From R. A. F. Station Killed in Crash

HALIFAX, April 24 — (CP) — Three airmen from the R.A.F. station at Pennfield Ridge, N.B., were killed yesterday in the crash of a plane at Springhaven, N.S., the eastern air command here announced last night.

Next of kin of the fliers have been advised and their names will be issued shortly. The eastern air command did not say whether they were Canadians or Britons.

4 Missing Fliers Are Discovered in Nazi Prison Camp

OTTAWA, April 24—(CP)—Four Canadian airmen who a short time ago were reported missing after a raid, have turned up in a German prison camp, a dispatch released by Air Force headquarters said last night.

The four are P.O. George Chretien, D.F.M., of Pencianguishene, Ont., Flt. Sgt. Thomas E. Carlon, D.F.M., of Montreal; Sgt. Harold G. Reynolds of Pembroke, Ont., and Sgt. Arthur Collins, of Rose-Lynn Alta.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, April 24—(AP)—The stock market continued to display a high degree of selectivity today and, while assorted rubbers, oils, rails and specialties tilted moderately upward, many leaders remained in the losing column. It was some of the liveliest Saturday post-holiday sessions in several years, the turnover running to around 600,000 shares.

Easter Holds Greater Meaning Under Stress War Conditions

"Christ is Risen Again." Never, perhaps, in the history of the Christian world have those words held such meaning, or expressed so much hope. Never, in any living man's history has there been such inclination, spiritually, to observe this religious festival, to participate in the offering of praises to the Almighty.

Church doors are open wide to receive worshippers in thousands. Many others while unable to openly offer their thanks and sing Easter anthems, know that Christ who died for Christian humanity, lives again.

It is symbolic that Easter and Spring both bring that sense of a new awakening, the dawn of a brighter, happier day, when the whole world, and all that dwell therein, shall know and understand the Master's words: "Peace be with you."

In Edmonton, thousands of citizens crowded into places of worship on Good Friday. Tomorrow, Easter Sunday, will see congregations again flocking to those places where they may freely worship and praise the God of their fathers.

Nearly 900 persons attended a combined Good Friday service at the Pentecostal Tabernacle Friday evening, when a combined service was held by the Beulah Tabernacle, the First Church of the Nazarene, and the Pentecostal Tabernacle.

The Rev. A. M. Mallory of the Pentecostal Tabernacle was in charge of the service, while a stirring sermon on "The Cross" was delivered by Rev. A. B. Patterson, of the First Church of the Nazarene.

The three choirs of the churches also united to sing special music for the meeting. The singing was led by Rev. J. D. Carlson of Beulah Tabernacle.

CAMPAIGN CLOSES

The Pentecostal Tabernacle's special Young People's campaign which has been conducted for the last two weeks, will close at Sunday services at the Tabernacle, 10047 108 street.

At 11:30 Sunday morning, Mrs. A. M. Mallory will deliver the sermon, her subject being, "The Empty Tomb."

At the evening service, Mr. Mallory will speak on his topic, "The Power of the Resurrection."

Special Easter music by the choir will be featured at these services.

The traditional Easter fashion parade will take place, this year reflecting many war time restrictions. There will be new hats, dresses, coats, suits, shoes. Perhaps the hats are last year's with new trimmings. The shoes may be a pair of wooden block affairs, or the suit minus cuffs.

SOMEWHAT CHANGED

The Easter table will be somewhat changed, too, for there are fewer chocolate eggs. But hard-boiled eggs, colored with wax crayons while they are still warm from the boiling water, doubtless will be plentiful. Some meats, like "Easter hams" will be missing from the menus.

But it is Easter. And the hope for a continuance of Saturday's warm sun and blue skies is high. Friday's rain did much to settle the dust and clear the air. And every-one is happy.

Early Gains Lost On Grain Market

WINNIPEG, April 24—(CP)—Wheat prices receded after making early gains of more than one cent on Winnipeg grain exchange today. The May future finished unchanged to ⅛ cent lower at 98½ cents a bushel, the July ⅛ cent lower at 99⅛ cents and the October ⅜ to ¾ cent lower at 99½ cents.

Trading was brisk during the opening stages with shippers credited with most of the buying. Support [illegible] however, toward the close and light [illegible] was sufficient to send the [illegible]

Export business in Canadian wheat to the United Kingdom since Thursday aggregated more than 3,500,000 bushels.

In the coarse grain futures market [illegible] was reported in July barley [illegible] July rye.

Grain inspections at Winnipeg for the last two days totalled 762 cars compared with 455 last year. Country marketings amounted to 599,000 bushels against 246,000 a year ago.

"Mother Goose" stories have been loved by the children of Canada and elsewhere for many years. Most of us have thought of Mother Goose merely as a legendary character; but we were wrong about it. Mother Goose actually lived, and her grave may be visited in the old cemetery in downtown Boston. Her real name was Mary Goose and she created the stories to entertain children of her day.

"Back the Attack"

Buy Victory Bonds

—and keep them

WHAT is your choice . . . Dollars in your pocket now and bonds on your wrists and ankles later on . . . OR Victory Bonds in your name now and dollars to spend later on?

Should the Nazi waves engulf us . . . your dollars wouldn't buy you a handful of sand. But, invested now, your dollars will buy Victory and will be returned to you after they have served that end.

You SAVE your dollars, SAVE lives and SAVE the world . . . when you buy Victory Bonds.

You Were Born Lucky— Will You Remain So?

What do you think of, as you walk home in safety every night, from the office, plant and shop? What do you think of, when you get up from a satisfying abundant meal? What do you think of when you wake from a peaceful night's sleep? What do you think, after sitting serenely through a show?

Do you think of the thousands, even millions, without roofs over their heads, without food in their mouths, shivering from cold and weariness, living in hourly dread? That is the miserable prospect for peoples under the heel of Hitler today. That is the menace we are fighting against!

Do you think of the men who are standing guard on the frontiers of the democratic world, the men who are home-lovers just as you are but who have been "on duty" in distant places one, two and almost three years? Do you ever think of shortening the "duration" for them?

Do you think of the little children who have to go without the needed milk and eggs of their diet, whose education is interrupted, whose whole lives have been upset . . . just because one man wants to act the leading role of a book he wrote?

Prevention Now Lies In Your Own Hands!

The war is drawing closer, we are feeling and hearing its vibrations. Shall we feel the full blast of destruction . . . or shall we profit by the experiences of other nations and invest IN TIME in prevention?

That prevention . . . which will give back to little children the heritage of childhood to which they are entitled, that will shorten the duration for our boys in service, that will defeat the menace threatening the world's democracies . . . lies in YOUR hands, in the dollar bills you can hand over on loan to Canada.
